Job Crisis Kills Hope For Youth

By VINCENT J. BURKE

MOSCOW (Special) — For an extraordinarily large number of Soviet youth this spring brings anxiety. Many are doomed to taste bitter disappointment this summer.

Canada To Host Counter Missiles?

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might provide the United States with some of the necessary real estate if the latter decides to build a counter-missile system, informed sources said Monday.

Any Canadian sites for such a system to shoot down approaching ballistic missiles would likely be in the area of the present Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., the source said.

Such siting would provide some protection for Toronto and Montreal.

NOT CERTAIN YET

Authorities emphasized that it is still far from certain that the U.S. will try to erect a counter-missile system, even a rudimentary one. And even if it did, it was only a possibility that Canada would participate by providing a couple of sites.

Officials said the government doesn't want to become involved financially in such a system if it can help it. An elementary network would cost between $8,000,000 and $10,500,000 and a more advanced one some $30,000,000.

PREPARE DEFENCES

Press reports from Moscow say large, mysterious structures in the countryside near Moscow and Leningrad indicate that Russia is installing a defence system against intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Previously, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara indicated that he is more worried about a Chinese Communist long-range missile force than about Russia's.

WOULD KILL MANY

Mr. McNamara also said effectiveness of a major counter-missile system would be uncertain and that even with one 50,000,000 Americans would be killed in any surprise Soviet nuclear attack.

Development of components for a "light" counter-missile system designed to cope with any attack from China would be pressed vigorously, however, copter and jeep.

Masterful Timing

Wilson's Caginess Hurts Tory Election Hopes

By EDWIN BOTH

BIRMINGHAM (Special) — In the huge market hall of Birmingham packed by 12,000 people — with thousands unable to get in — Prime Minister Harold Wilson stands beneath television floodlights and shouts to the chanting, howling, screaming young Conservatives: "I think the young Tories should be congratulated for their well-drilled, organized chanting. We have seen nothing like it since the Nuremberg Nazi rallies!"

These howling young Tories

are too young to remember the German Nazis. They don't know how much their staccato chants "Wilson Out — Wilson Out" sound like the Nazi rally noises. To increase the bedlam, they blow shrill whistles, ring bells and swing the large wooden rattles used by supporters at English football games.

Loud interruptions with ironic questions and comments are allowed at British election meetings and are a beloved old tradition known as heckling.

Harold Wilson reveals in it. But what we see here in the Birmingham Rag Market is something very different — an organized attempt by hundreds of young Tories — most of them students from Birmingham and Oxford universities — to prevent Wilson speaking. They have come to break up the meeting.

But the more they howl, scream, whistle, rattle and chant, the greater grows the joy of Wilson and his Labor party's campaign managers. This can only help Wilson and harm the Tories.

While the hooded Rag Market is seething pandemonium, the correspondent of the Independent Conservative and fiercely anti-Labor London Daily Express telephones his report for 4,000,000 front pages, in which he describes the young Conservatives as "chanting in a kind of hypnotic frenzy." Most Britons don't like hypnotic frenzy in their politics.

In October, 1964, the Conservative Prime Minister Sir

Truscott Case Doubts

Soul-Searching MPs May Ban Noose

By RON COLLISTER

Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The awful doubts about Steven Truscott's guilt may tilt the scales against the all-mighty retentionists in Wednesday's historic death penalty debate.

"This could happen," New Democrat leader T. C.

Douglas said Monday night, as MPs panicked over the possibility that Truscott, then 14, was not the slayer of 17-year-old Lynne Harper.

The Truscott case, Mr. Douglas said, attracts attention to archaic laws that allow a boy of 14 to be condemned to hang.

If a judicial inquiry is held and he is cleared, "we can give Truscott back some years of life," he said.

"If we had hanged him, we would have deprived him of everything."

The possibility of error is one of the major arguments against retention of the death penalty.

Therefore, the Truscott case weighs heavily over MPs as they prepare for the debate.

Before the Commons, it was disclosed Monday night, will be a resolution authored by four MPs: James Byrne, Liberal; Terry Nugent, Tory; Reid Scott, New Democrat; and Robert Stanbury, Liberal.

Their resolution would abolish the death penalty for all offenses but attempts are certain to be made to modify it and retain the penalty for some kinds of murder.

It reads as follows:

"Resolved that it is expedient to introduce a measure to amend the Criminal Code for the purposes of: 1. 'Abolishing the death penalty in respect of all offenses under the Act.' 2. 'Substituting a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment in those cases where the death penalty is now mandatory.' 3. 'Providing that no person upon whom the mandatory sentence of life imprisonment is imposed shall be released from imprisonment without

'This Could Happen'

Non-Confidence Motions

Socred 'Save' Pledged Grits

By FRASER KELLY

Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government today will easily defeat opposition non-confidence motions based on its alleged failure to halt soaring prices and curb inflation.

Socred financial critic Bud Olson indicated Monday his party will support the government rather than force another election.

Conservatives and New Democrats raised their motion as Finance Minister Sharp opened a debate to allow the parliament to supply money to the government.

SERIOUS EFFECT

The Conservative motion cited the cost of living index which reached an all time high of 142.1 points in February. It added:

"This house regrets that the government has failed to act effectively to hold down living costs and halt inflation, both of which are having a serious effect on persons receiving social security, war pensions, old age pensions, retired civil servants, persons on fixed incomes and all low income groups."

REVIEW BOARD

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas added a clause regretting the government's failure to establish a price review board.

Mr. Diefenbaker lambasted the government for spending too much and paying no attention to inflation and the rising cost of living.

"Everywhere attention is called to the danger of our moving into an inflationary period which cannot be controlled and which might easily backfire into a depression."

HOUSEWIVES HIT

The housewife, the wage-earner, the pensioner, the old age pensioner, the war pensioner, the retired civil servant and all who live on fixed incomes are today facing the tremendous cost of living. It will go still higher in all parts of Canada as one province after another imposes its own sales tax," he said.

"Everywhere across the nation there has been a cascade of increases in food prices—yet the federal government has not declared war against inflation," the Tory leader said.

FOOD PRICES UP

Then he listed about two dozen food items which have risen in price in the past year. He used statistics to demonstrate that housing, clothing, transportation and health care are also significantly higher than last year.

"All this then adds up to the fact that Canadians today are paying the highest prices in history in peace time," he said.

TOKYO (Reuters) — At least two men were believed killed and 10 missing—buried or trapped—in a coal mine disaster on Japan's northernmost island today, according to reports reaching here.

Students Call Ky 'Traitor'

SAIGON (UPI) — American Marines killed 281 Communist Viet Cong Monday in action near the South Viet Nam border and in a second big battle further south. For the first time in the current political unrest, students directly attacked Premier Nguyen Cao Ky by name early Tuesday, branding him a traitor to the nation.

The students of one of Saigon's largest high schools staged an angry, anti-government walkout and were barred from returning to their classrooms by nervous school officials who feared they could not control them.

educational institutions this year. Despite the 200 per cent rise in the number of high school graduates, the Soviet government has approved an expansion of only nine per cent in the freshman classes of universities and institutes next fall.

ADULTS

Only 404,000 full-time students will gain a place in the 1966 freshman class. Some of these places will be reserved for older persons who have worked for at least two years.

Probably no more than 340,000 from the 1966 high school graduating class will continue studies this year as full-time college students. That is roughly about one out of every eight high school graduates.

Since Soviet high school graduates themselves are a select group, accounting this year for 36 per cent of the total number of young people aged 17 and 78, this means that only about one out of every 23 persons aged 17 and 78 will begin college in the autumn.

DEBOUTS, TOO

The remaining 2,000,000 new graduates will be expected to go to work. Also tabbed for the labor force are at least 800,000 of the 3,800,000 who will graduate May 28 from the eighth-grade elementary schools. In addition, ninth-grade dropouts also will enter the labor force.

Each industry will receive a quota stating the number of job vacancies to be reserved for teen-agers.

RESISTANCE

The Soviet Union stands on the threshold of a jobs-for-youth crisis of unprecedented dimensions because the outback in the secondary school years coincides with a sharp boost in the number of youths reaching working age.

In 1964, after Nikita Khrushchev complained that Soviet high school graduates were "scorning physical labor," the Soviet Union adopted a law to require all pupils to go to work after eighth grade and permitting them simultaneously to take a three-year course preparing them for university admission.

VOCATIONAL

Instead of being closed, the 10-year schools of general education were generally altered to triple their hours of shop work, partly by addition of an 11th year in which as much as half the time was devoted to shop work.

By this adaptation, the schools sought to satisfy Khrushchev's demands for more vocational training. But factory managers stressed the emphasis on pupil-employees and the training often was not matched to job prospects. By August, 1964, Khrushchev decided to abandon the vocationally-oriented 11th grade, as is being done this year.

It remains to be seen whether enough discontent arises this summer to induce the Kremlin to assign more priority to college spending.

University Pair Going East

Two University of Victoria students will travel to Quebec and Ontario in May on a travel and education seminar sponsored by the World University Service of Canada.

They are Michelle Bradshaw, 1101 Hampshire Road, a fourth-year education student, and Clarence Edwards, 42 Moss Street, an overseas student from Antigua, British West Indies.

With other students from across Canada they will talk and study in Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto from May 27 to June 14.

Frank Answers as Needed Best for Sex Education

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I talked to my 13-year-old daughter about menstruation but I know from past experience that she heard only about half of what I said, understood about a fourth, and in all probability will forget most of the rest. What do you suggest I do next? — MRS. E.W.

If she heard half, I congratulate you upon having such an attentive 13-year-old.

For sex education in general, there are lots of arguments as to when it should begin and who should provide it, but I can't help thinking that home is usually the place, and it should progress at the rate at which children show any interest in the subject.

Frank answers to questions, whether direct or implied, probably are the best means. If there are puppies or kittens or baby brothers or sisters (but not in that order of importance) being born, there is some curiosity even in the very young, and by age of 5 to 7 children should absorb the fact that babies form in the mother's tummy. Fantasy about the stark doesn't make any sense to practical children.

Your Good Health

As for menstruation, you have a slightly different problem, but some underlying information, inculcated earlier in life, helps.

You must, of course, prepare a girl of that age for the chance that menstruation will start rather soon, and nobody can tell whether it will be at home or in school, or at play.

Your daughter may have not heard half, not under stood half of that, and forgotten most of the rest — but the chances are that she will remember, perhaps mostly sub-consciously, more than you think. She doesn't need a full biological explanation now. She DOES need to know that when her first menstrual period starts, it is perfectly normal. If it starts in school, she should not be embarrassed but should ask the teacher for a teacher, and the teacher will understand.

Wild Heckling Stings Tories

one of the world's most skilled politicians — a superb showman who knew exactly what would happen in the Birmingham Rag Market, and how to exploit it. On the train from London he remarked: "I know it's going to be very rough — and that's what I like." He plays it cool, very cool — giving a magnificent and controlled performance.

Two television cameras of the British Broadcasting Corporation and commercial television are in the hall. This is peak viewing time. Wilson knows that during the next four hours he and his Rag Market audience will be shown five times on British television — in three long newscasts, and two special election programs. Almost every British family watching television will see this meeting.

While his young opponents chant and howl, Wilson calmly lights his pipe and surrounds himself with a cloud of comfortable smoke. He laughs with apparently genuine pleasure when Young Tories raise hangman's nooses — exploiting the sensational "hangman's nooses" labor union court to the Rag Market. But Wilson knows that the hangman's nooses are being spooked by his opponents' behavior.

As a change from "Wilson Out," they howl "We want Health! We want Health!"

Nothing could be more stupid. Tory leader Edward Heath has refused to speak in the Birmingham Rag Market, where election meetings by political leaders are traditional. Instead, he has scheduled a meeting at Birmingham town hall, with admission only by tickets from the Conservative party. Until now, Heath has failed miserably to project himself and to communicate with mass audiences.

"So you want Health?" shouts Wilson happily — and even if he cannot be heard in the hall, he can be seen and heard in millions of British homes. "But it doesn't dare to come and speak here in the Rag Market! The Tory leader is afraid to show himself to the people of Birmingham, and has retreated to the town hall, where only a carefully screened audience will be allowed to listen to him!"

"If you want to see and hear your leader, you must ask his party for tickets. I have been looking forward to this Rag Market confrontation. I really can't understand why anyone would run away from the Rag Market!"

Wilson's howling opponents still don't see what all this is doing to his image. Paper and cardboard pieces are showered on the platform and Mr. Wilson is brushed on the neck by a cardboard missile.

Police men try to push back the missile throwers but Wilson immediately calls out "I ask the police to leave them alone!" Rudefully he remarks: "And we did support votes at 18 — Heaven help us!" (Britain's present minimum voting age is 21 years.)

As soon as Wilson knows from his watch that the meeting is now "Live" on nation-wide

New System Saves Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury told the Commons Monday the government will save $1,000,000 through a new system of a warning contracts for repair and overhaul of RCAF instruments. prior approval of the government-in-council.

The resolution, if passed, simply would abolish the death sentence and replace it with a life term that could be shortened only by cabinet intervention.

Meanwhile, the debate over Truscott's guilt of innocence is impacting the emotions of MPs.

In the Commons, Prime Minister Pearson said he is taking a personal interest in the case.

But he would give no decision on a royal commission until Solicitor-General Larry Penneil gave him a full report on the case.

Outside the Commons, New Democrat Stanley Knowles, who visited Truscott in Collin's Bay Penitentiary and now is convinced of his innocence, predicted that there would be a judicial inquiry.

"They can't refuse it, with the tremendous public opinion across the country," he said.

However, not everyone shares Knowles' view of Truscott's innocence.

"You will be glad to know," says Wilson with exquisite glee, "that for the last 10 minutes we have been carried 'live' on Independent Television News. You will be glad to know that the Nazi performance of the Young Tories here has been witnessed 'live' by, at a conservative estimate, 'about 10,000,000 people.'

"Gentlemen, I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart. The Conservative leader would have been proud of you. He can count the number of votes you have lost him!"

Conservatives at the press table sadly agree with Wilson. For the rest of the campaign, he will miss no opportunity to mention his opponents' "Nazi" behavior in Birmingham — and most Britons have seen him triumphantly standing up to them. Nothing in this election battle could have done James Harold Wilson more good than his evening in the Birmingham Rag Market.

Oil 'Leaking' Into Rhodesia

OTTAWA (CP) — There have been oil "leakages" into Rhodesia though not to the extent indicated in some press reports, Prime Minister Pearson said Monday in the Commons. He said in reply to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that there is still pressure on the Rhodesian economy because of the oil embargo. He promised a fuller reply today or Wednesday.

Pesticides Under Leukemia Cloud

By HARRY NELSON
LOS ANGELES (LAT) — Pesticides may be one cause of lethal blood disease such as leukemia and aplastic anemia, a Mayo Clinic physician said here Monday.

Dr. M. M. Hargrave, a senior consultant to the clinic, said the public should be advised of the suspicion that repeated exposure to pesticides in the home and on farms could lead to possible chronic or fatal illness.

The physician, speaking at a special conference on environmental health at the annual meeting of the California Medical Association, said he is convinced the number of persons so afflicted equals the annual traffic accident toll in the United States—more than 48,000 in 1965.

Dr. Hargrave said he has seen hundreds of cases of leukemia, aplastic anemia, Hodgkin's disease and a variety of serious blood diseases which appear to be related to pesticide exposure.

Lindane vaporizers and insect sprays of the type used in stores and homes to keep out insects were implicated in a number of cases, he said.

Dr. Hargrave said one young woman who came to him was found to have a lindane vaporizer in her music room, where she spent several hours a day practicing the piano. She was found to have aplastic anemia, an often fatal disease in which blood cells are destroyed.

Another case involved a man on a 21-day camping trip who sprayed his tent heavily each night with an insect bomb before retiring. Several months later he developed anemia and died the following year of acute leukemia.

A California man who dusted the underside of his house with lindane shortly afterwards developed fatigue, tremor, loss of appetite, and anemia.

It was learned that the lindane apparently had seeped into a floor furnace which distributed fumes throughout the house.

After the house and furnace had been thoroughly cleaned it took two and one half years for the man to recover, Dr. Hargrave said.

Dr. Hargrave said the individual who reacts to pesticides in this way is the minority in the population. They probably have individual idiosyncrasies in their chemical makeup which make them susceptible to pesticides.

Bomb Slips Deeper

PALOMARES, Spain (UPI)—A U.S. nuclear bomb lying 2,500 feet below the Mediterranean surface slipped 30 feet down the slope of an underwater ridge and was in danger of lodging in a narrow crevice, it was learned Monday.

Informed sources said the crevice was so narrow that special submarines being used in recovery operations would be useless. They said U.S. officials feared such a development could delay recovery of the missing bomb for several weeks.

Officials had expected to lift the unarmed hydrogen bomb to the surface within a few days.

PESSIMISTIC

Rear Adm. William S. Guest, commander of the U.S. navy task force which located the bomb last Wednesday, was reported pessimistic about the chances of a quick recovery.

The operation has been hampered by high winds, heavy seas and technical trouble in one of the submarines, the 51-foot Albatross.

The bomb, still attached to its parachute, was located with the help of fisherman Francisco Simo, who saw it fall after a B-52 crash Jan. 17.

Nuclear Spectre Scaring Children

Spock

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — "People keep asking me," said Dr. Benjamin Spock, "what a baby doctor—and they spit out that word 'baby'—has to do with nuclear policy."

Spock, co-chairman of the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, gave this answer at a press conference.

"The physical dangers of fallout are 100 times the dangers of disease and accidents that children fall heir to."

In fact, he said, up to 80 per cent of the children in the United States are seriously worried over the spectre of nuclear attack.

Rumbling Against Mao May Split Policy — Expert

WASHINGTON (AP) — China will witness as furious a succession struggle in China as we saw in the Soviet Union after the death of Stalin.

A second witness in the committee's continuing investigation of China, Dr. Harold C. Hinton of George Washington University, noted Peking's sharp setbacks in the underdeveloped countries in the last year. These setbacks, he said, have "been so serious that it may well be that a major rethinking of Chinese foreign policy is in progress, such as occurred in the Soviet Union after the Cuban missile crisis."

POWEE LESS PRESSURE

If so, Hinton continued, "the outcome is likely to be less rather than more Chinese pressure on other countries . . ."

"In fact, a long-term mellowing is the most likely outlook for future Chinese policy, unless the United States gives China reason to act differently by renegeing its commitment policy, which has already contributed substantially to moderating Chinese foreign policy much as it did Soviet foreign policy during the last years of Stalin's life, and for that matter as it has since."

China, he continued, will remain a problem and sometimes raise a threat, "but not an unmanageable one so long as the United States is willing to do what may be necessary to keep it manageable."

RED CROSS IS ALWAYS THERE WITH YOUR HELP

Ky's Warning Ignored

DA NANG, Viet Nam (UPI) — Bus and pedicab drivers Monday ignored Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's warning against anti-government demonstrations and paraded for a return to civilian rule.

Police did not halt the two-hour parade but barred other traffic along the march route in this strategic northern coastal city that has been a centre of anti-Ky demonstrations.

More than 300 drivers paraded with signs demanding an end to military government and the recall of exiled military leaders.

They demonstrated as the nation's powerful Buddhist leaders in Saigon told their followers to stand by for action if necessary. A unified Buddhist church communique indicated unhappy surprise at Ky's Sunday statement that "any form of disturbance — street demonstrations, striking and walkouts — will have no influence on the government . . . this is a warning to those who . . . are scheming to betray and sell out the nation."

South Koreans Hike Contingent

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korean reinforcements totaling 25,000 men will be dispatched to South Viet Nam to fight the Communists, it was reported Monday. This will almost double the number of South Korean troops engaged in the war.

Ann Arbor Puzzled

'Object' Hovers Over Patrolman

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Several of his deputies reported sighting the objects from two different locations.

Harvey said the objects reported the objects flew up and down and did zooming banks, emitting blue, light green and red lights.

Deputy John Foster, who reported a similar sighting last week, said he spent six years in the U.S. Strategic Air Command and "never saw anything move so fast."

He estimated the objects flew at 10,000 feet.

LANDED IN FIELD

Among the residents who reported spotting the objects was an unidentified man who said the craft landed in his field briefly and then took off. Neighbors searched the area where the object was said to have landed but found nothing.

Radar operators at nearby Willow Run Airport said there were no unexplained radar contacts during the night.

Who says you can't buy a 4 door sports car?

Count 'em!

You found four doors, right? Two lead into the bucket seats in front and the other two give easy access to the back. A nice, cosy way for four adults to travel. Five in a pinch. You think that makes our Sunbeam a Sedan? Well it gives all the comforts of a Sedan—you can even buy it with American Automatic transmission, and you can pack all sorts of luggage in the family-sized trunk. But that lusty 69.5 h.p. engine pushes you up to 60 in only 16.5 seconds. Smoothly and quietly. And the standard 4 speed floor mounted transmission adds a bit of sports car flair. Front disc brakes, self-adjusting clutch, padded dash and visors, good gas mileage, a heater-defroster that really pours it out and a 5 year/50,000 mile power train warranty on engine and drive train parts. You couldn't ask for much more in a sporty sedan that sells for around $2100*. Perhaps we should have gone all the way and called our Sunbeam '1725' Sedan a sports car. But whoever heard of a 4 door sports car? One of the Sunbeam family of fine performers.

Curious Quest

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S trade minister, Mr. Ralph Raymond Loffmark, is reported to have advocated, in an address to the Vancouver Lions Club, an economic and customs union between Canadian provinces and certain of the United States.

For example, he appears to favor some form of union between British Columbia and the states of Washington, Oregon and California.

He speaks of a "fusion" of economies on a state-province basis.

Just how this would be accomplished without British Columbia's withdrawal from confederation Mr. Loffmark can perhaps explain. Before entering politics a couple of years ago, the minister was a UBC professor in the commerce department. He holds degrees in accountancy, business administration and political science and, moreover, is an internationally recognized authority in the field of taxation.

On the basis of this background he ought to be well equipped to expound his economic union theories in such a manner that they will be understood by the layman. But in the past he has been misunderstood. For example, it was only last May that he made remarks which were widely interpreted as indicating that British Columbia's government was seriously considering "separation" from confederation.

This he subsequently denied. But in the course of his denial he was quoted as saying, "The problems between the federal government and the provinces are of such magnitude that the point could easily be reached where confederation would no longer work."

Now he is saying of his contemplated B.C.-Pacific coast states union:

"We must integrate our two economies quickly and completely and I urge you all to strive for this purpose."

Mr. Loffmark also envisions development of a vast Pacific trade area by which B.C. would benefit by export of its raw resources to the Far East. After all, he points out, Yokohama could be far more vital to B.C. economically than Edmonton or Calgary.

Without attempting to debate this particular point, it is still far from clear how B.C. could formulate an economic union with American states and still remain a part of Canada.

If Mr. Loffmark has a formula perhaps it should be spelled out in simple language to relieve the minds of some who may be concerned with the protection of our sovereignty and others who may be confused by recommendations which would seem to threaten it.

Churchill 'Blunders'

IT WAS TO BE expected that Sir Winston Churchill would not rest long in his grave before the armchair historians began to chip away at his reputation as a wartime leader. This is the fate of all great men.

Sir Basil Liddell Hart is known as a long-time military critic of repute, although even the best of these write from hindsight and were spared the strains and stresses that national leaders faced and the crucial decisions they had to make, and one would have to read his criticisms of Sir Winston in full before appraising his views with objectivity. The reported extracts from his article on what he finds as Churchillian blunders are apparently not the whole story, since he is quoted at one point as citing Churchill as "a wonderful man."

Two opinions at least expressed by Sir Basil, however, appear peculiar, one of them most certainly. This is his statement that it wasn't Churchill who inspired his people to supreme effort after Dunkirk, but the fact of Dunkirk itself.

If there is one thing that seems obvious it is the opposite of this. Dunkirk was a defeat—Churchill pronounced it such himself—and it would have had a deadening effect not only on Britain but on all the allied world had not the superb eloquence and valiant spirit of Churchill roused his nation in speeches that turned defeat into victory. He infused his countrymen with a courage that did not die. In Canada alone these talks made listeners rise from the radio feeling inches taller.

It is surprising that Liddell Hart, whatever validity attaches to his other criticisms, should deny the verity of what is universally conceded as a bulwark of British defence at that time—the inspiring example of Churchill.

One other statement seems at odds with the history of wartime events. Sir Basil says Hitler was determined to avoid war with the U.S.A. if he possibly could. Strange then that four days after Pearl Harbor Germany should declare war on the U.S., not the other way round. It is interesting to speculate in fact how subsequent events would have shaped themselves if Hitler had refrained from direct confrontation with America.

Sir Winston Churchill was not a superman who never made a wrong move, but assuredly he stood out majestically above all his contemporaries and his wartime record can well withstand the pinpricks and assessments that inevitably will be made of his leadership in years of great peril.

Less More Often

COURTS OF REVISION, hearing appeals against increased valuations of property for taxation purposes, have often heard the suggestion that owners would not mind so much if assessments climbed in small (even though more frequent) steps rather than the big jumps that sometimes occur. The government's action to limit increases to 5 per cent a year where there has been no change in land use should accomplish this purpose. Other effects, however, remain to be seen.

In areas where market values of land and homes are rising rapidly, a 5 per cent increase may not be sufficient to maintain the present fixed relationship between these values and assessments, except perhaps if applied annually.

Premier Bennett says that the assessors do not have to increase the assessments that much—"They don't have to increase them at all, but if they do they can't go higher than 5 per cent"—but certainly, where prices are climbing, there will be the tendency to make this boost or something like it a yearly affair, subject in individual cases to such offsetting considerations as obsolescence and deterioration, of course.

However, if such turns out to be the case, there remains the consolation of the homeowner grant for British Columbians in this category.

If assessments are to rise, generally, a little every year, the grant increase also is an annual custom, and showing no signs of falling into disuse as the Bennett years roll along.

Pearson Must Dance to Cardin's Tune

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

IT may be entertaining to read and hear, with fascinated dismay, the incredible details of the Munsinger affair.

But wait a minute.

Peer through the still-falling dust of the poisonous fallout of the scandal explosion.

And what do you see?

Many, many things, of course, with still more to come.

But what already is there to plain sight is the fact that the control of the federal Liberals has fallen into the hands of Quebec.

The government is being directed, not so much by Prime Minister Pearson, as by the administration's Quebec caucus.

Headed, as you know, by Privy Council President Guy Favreau in theory, but now in actual practice by Justice Minister Lucien Cardin, as tough, thick-skinned and rock-hard as a political operator as ever came down the political pike from Quebec's hard-boiled Metro constituency where the MPs almost always are five-minute eggs.

Lucien Cardin, a deceptively mild-looking little guy, gentle of social manner, took over practical working control of government parliamentary battle strategy when he "withdrew" his resignation in the upsurge of the Spencer spy case.

The resignation was withdrawn at the frantic pleading of the prime minister.

Who says so?

Lucien Cardin himself.

If he had gone — hadn't granted the prime minister's prayerful pleas — other French-Canadian cabinet ministers, perhaps all the privy councillors from the Quebec caucus, would have left with him.

It became, so says Lucien Cardin, a potential cabinet split on the French-English line.

And if the split had gone all the way, with Lucien Cardin and his cabinet colleagues from Quebec walking out, it would have destroyed the government.

So the prime minister, if the administration was to survive the crisis over the Spencer case, had no alternative but to pay the price Lucien Cardin demanded.

Was that price to "go the limit" on the Munsinger affair?

In vengeance for old insults and still rankling humiliations in their long and bitterly deep personal vendetta, did the tough little justice minister exact from what must have been an agonizingly reluctant prime minister the stay-in-cabinet-ransom of being allowed to destroy his blood enemy, John Diefenbaker?

Whatever the deal — and there had to be some kind of a "deal" — or the Quebec ministers would have pulled the French-Canadian prop and pillar out from under the government — Lucien Cardin picked up the power mantle.

"I shuddered," one of the English-speaking members of the cabinet has been quoted as saying, "at the prospect of what I knew was going to happen, but there was no way out. Either we went along or they walked out, and then where would we have been?"

How real was the Quebec threat?

Well, Lucien Cardin has said "others," backing him, were prepared to pull out.

But who, he was asked.

"Marchand (citizenship and immigration minister) for one," he told that incredible press conference of his.

What does it mean — apart altogether from its immediate repercussion in the decision to go for broke in the Munsinger mess — in terms of power at the top?

Just this: Anytime the Quebec caucus wants something, anything that the Quebec ministers set their hearts on, automatically will be theirs if they dig in their heels and play tough.

For now they have the ultimate weapon. The threat of mass resignation.

Go on, go on.

And the never-ending war within the cabinet — in any cabinet, Conservative or Liberal — the weapon of mass resignation is as ultimate as the nuclear bomb is to ordinary warfare.

It's a threat, the final deterrent.

So if you think the government was handing over backwards to oblige Quebec... if you think Prime Minister Pearson has been soft on Premier Jean Lesage... if you think it has mounted to something close to appeasement... then prepare for more.

To do business, the government still depends on its Quebec members for voting beef in Parliament, and now having successfully used the threat of resignation to make the prime minister jump, the French-Canadian members of the cabinet can make him skip rope anytime they want.

The cruiser Orestes sailed from Liverpool under the flag of the Confederate States of America 104 years ago today — in 1862 — the first of three commerce raiders built for the rebels in Britain. Despite the success of the U.S. Navy in closing Confederate ports, these three vessels had such long endurance that they effectively halted U.S. merchant trade. The Alabama captured 68 ships during a 22-month cruise without once being fired.

At the end of the war the United States took legal action against Britain for building these ships and was awarded $15,500,000 by an arbitration council in 1872.

Menace to Air Traffic Feared

MANY oldsters will remember the very convenient seaplane passenger service to Seattle from Victoria's inner harbor.

At the present time we are told that with helicopters and amphibious airplanes the traveling public are rapidly increasing in numbers because delays are avoided in the travel time between a city and its airport many miles out of town.

Why then permit the erection of a definite menace to aircraft approaching our inner harbor during poor weather?

Let the needs soar with the skybirds at Updell or Christmas Hill. Keep the harbor for helicopters.

May we heartily commend through the medium of your paper, those responsible for the choice of Jerry Gossley as co-ordinator of our Centennial affairs, and congratulate him, publicly, for this singular honor, which he so richly deserves.

May we add a further word of admiration for his glowing tribute to the late Norma MacDonald, in the form of a memorial concert, soon to be staged at the McPherson Playhouse (March 28) for the purpose of acquiring a concert grand piano in her name.

May we say that we deem it a great privilege to have known Norma and can think of no finer way of immortalizing the memory of this remarkable woman, our friend, who loved all things bright and beautiful, all creatures, great and small.

Bloody Harvest

Seal hunting in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is in the news these days, and we should be grateful if you would publish this letter. Our authority for the facts in it is the Interim Reports of the Agent and of the Consultant Veterinarian to the New Brunswick Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals: both these persons were eye-witnesses of the killing this year.

The facts are these. Many seals are crushed to pulp as the ships plow through the ice. Many seals are not skinned, and this implies that many baby seals are still alive and possibly conscious when their skins are ripped off their bodies. The baby seals show every sign of distress and terror during the hunt. The baby seals are slaughtered before the eyes of the mother seals; and the mother seals often return to sniff and nurse at the dead carcasses of their babies.

The conditions of the hunt, with the seals spread thickly over hundreds of square miles of ice, and the sealers working in scattered groups often a mile from the parent ship, make proper policing impracticable.

The conclusions we draw are these. Seal hunting is an utterly cruel and savage practice completely opposed to humanitarian standards in any civilized country. Seal hunting must be stopped at once, and the government must provide an alternative income for the offshore fishermen engaged in the hunt.

We ask each of your readers with the support of a vast majority of the Canadian public. To say that the humane killer they showed in the picture is not suitable — well surely one can be manufactured specially for the humane killing of seals. How ridiculous in this day and age to think that soon there will be a man put on the moon but seal hunters cannot kill the seals humanely!

It was also noted that a university professor claimed that the use of the club was a humane weapon. Such testimony to big business is sickening.

We must continue the pressure on the government by writing to our MPs and insisting that something be done to effect drastic changes in this shameful business.

National Disgrace

The producers of the TV program, This Hour Has 7 Days are to be commended for bringing the atrocities of the annual seal hunt to the attention of the general public. The fact that such wanton cruelty is permitted in this country is a national disgrace and I may say that is the one and only time in my 42 years of life in Canada that I am ashamed to say "I am a Canadian." It is indeed horrible to think that the baby seals suffer a painful and lingering death to fill the coffers of the fur traders and to satisfy female vanity.

In this wonderful age of space travel and a great multiplicity of modern inventions it is unthinkable that such primitive and cruel slaughtering methods are condoned in the fur industry by our government. Even the representatives of the so-called humane associations are only half-hearted in their protests.

Why do they not insist and demand humane methods be used? They must know they have the support of a vast majority of the Canadian public. To say that the humane killer they showed in the picture is not suitable — well surely one

Viet Nam

The letter signed H. G. Wyatt, and headed "Road to Peace," can only be classed as utter nonsense. The writer draws a distinction between two groups in the world—"Communists who proclaim their disbelief in God, religion, and the Christian ethic," and "Americans in Viet Nam, caring not only for themselves but helping a kinsman to save themselves from subjection to the opposite of all that Christians profess to hold most dear."

If we are to talk in terms of God, as 20th century Christians envisage Him, all the evidence I have seen suggests He should be opposing these Americans. He would help the weak against a great power from another continent employing enormous wealth and cruel modern weapons systematically to destroy the material achievements and the spirit of a brave but poor people.

In the same issue, your account of a Viet Cong victory appears under the headline "Cong Hordes Over-run 'Alamo'." "Hordes" conveys the idea of the sack of Rome by invading ravaging barbarians. "Alamo" was the scene of the

Washington Calling

Rigid U.S. Rules Banned a Panda

By MARQUIS CHILDS

A RARE example of East-West co-existence, and hopefully even cohabitation, offers a ray of relief in the grim flow of the news. Chi-Chi, the London Zoo's female giant panda, has been flown to Moscow to be introduced to An-An, the Moscow Zoo's male panda.

A footnote to the rigidity of America's China policy is recorded in Chi-Chi's earlier wanderings. She was originally to come to the United States, the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago having offered $50,000 for her to the Swiss animal dealer who had brought her from China to Europe.

Chi-Chi was one of two giant pandas outside China where the species in the great bamboo forests of the province of Szechwan is said to be increasingly rare. This was, then, a coup for the American zoo. Everyone was presumably happy, including Chi-Chi, whose owner was exhibiting her in European zoos at a special fee. But at this point the United States treasury intervened and what followed was a farcical bureaucratic hurdle. Wasn't Chi-Chi really a product of Red China? And didn't she, therefore, come under the ban of the trading-with-the-enemy act, dating from the Second World War, which prohibits any commerce with Communist China? It appeared that the United States would lose one of the two pandas outside the bamboo curtain.

An appeal was taken to Dr. Theodore H. Reed, director of Washington's National Zoo. He was asked if he could not help find a legitimate loophole to let Chi-Chi in. Maps were consulted. Wasn't it possible that she had strayed from the mountain fastness of Szechwan into Bhutan or even through Tibet into Nepal before she was captured?

For three days Chi-Chi's fate hung in the balance.

Finally the ruling was negative. Chi-Chi was denied admission, having been found beyond a doubt to be a product of Communist China. In the fall of 1959 the London Zoo snapped up the prize.

Trade with Communist China, giant pandas to one side, would under any circumstances be negligible so far as the booming American economy is concerned. China has little or nothing to sell that the United States wants to buy. On the export side American wheat, grocers and grain dealers looked longingly at the mass sales by Canada to Peking. Such sales are, of course, prohibited under the trading-with-the-enemy act.

It is the inflexibility of the American position, as shown once again in the hearings before the Fulbright committee, that puts the United States in a striking contrast with the Western Allies. They not only buy from China but sell in increasing volume from year to year, although the total is nothing like as large as the trade of Western Europe with the Soviet Union.

The trading-with-the-enemy ban was applied to China in 1950 and has apparently never been re-examined as part of American policy. Even ancient Chinese art is prohibited unless it can be established that it was taken out of China prior to 1950. The same ban applies to North Korea and North Viet Nam.

Lei Feng and Wang Chieh were both young army men who died untimely deaths. They were raised to hero positions when it was found that they kept diaries full of political slogans, rather than accounts of day-by-day activities.

Chiao Yu-hu is a former soldier who turned county party secretary and died of cancer in 1964. He has recently been raised to the rank of national hero on the discovery that he neglected his health in his efforts to bring the county under his control and to promote the teachings of Chairman Mao. Even on his death bed, he kept copies of the Selected Works of Mao Tse-tung, and how to be a Good Communist by Liu Shao-chi.

The only living national hero in the group being held up for universal emulation is a navy man, Mai Hsien-teh. According to Chinese Communist reports the power of Mao's philosophy on this young man was phenomenal.

During a sea battle last August, Mai was an engineer in a Communist gunboat. At the beginning of the encounter, a piece of shrapnel struck him on the forehead, penetrated the right frontal lobe of his brain and entered the left frontal lobe beside the skull. The right side of his body was paralyzed. Yet, buoyed by his faith in Chairman Mao's teachings, he did not collapse until the battle was over, and he had performed all tasks as ordered.

But the time Mai was taken to hospital, he was unconscious. However, when a copy of Mao's works was pressed into his hands, he grasped the book firmly. Regaining consciousness momentarily, he took a piece of paper and wrote "Long Live Chairman Mao."

Latest Chinese reports indicate that Mai is recovering. When Government Vice-Chairman Tung Pih-wu visited him in a Canton hospital a few days ago, Mai sang Tung a song: "Dedicate my red heart to the people."

Lack of Action

Ignoring the admonition of Victoria's newspaper theatre critics we went to see Royal Gambit. It is very obvious that neither the Colonist's critic nor the other has any knowledge or appreciation of theatre beyond that of western or musical comedy.

If either of these gentlemen were to visit Ontario's Stratford Festival they would doubtless be equally bored by the "lack of action" and line after line of boring dialogue, or the paucity of stage props.

Greek theatre, particularly Sophocles' Theban Plays, are even more devoid of action in the contemporary "western" sense of the word, yet we challenge these gentlemen to pronounce against this great playwright.

Long may Bastion Theatre flourish in spite of newspaper "critics."

With only two pandas outside of China—there are said to be a half-dozen in Chinese zoos—Chi-Chi on her mission to Moscow will be given tender, loving care in the hope that her union with An-An will be fruitful. She has been notably depressed in the spring and the fall and, as a curator at the London Zoo put it with typical British understatement, this is ascribed to the inadequacy of her sex life.

The offspring, if any, will plainly have a very high value in the zoo world with bids from everywhere. But for Washington it presents a problem that the treasury may already be brooding over. Chi-Chi was born in China, lived in Britain, had a honeymoon in Moscow where her young may be born. The treasury must decide whether her cubs will carry any of this saint.

China's New Heroes

By GUY SEARLES
from Hong Kong

CHINA is using an old Russian device to spur the people to increase production in her third five-year-plan. It is the creation of labor heroes—the Stakhanovite technique developed during the Soviet second five-year-plan.

Alexis Stakhanov was a Donetsk coal miner whose production was so high in 1935 that he was held up as a hero for the rest of the nation to copy. China's technique considerably modifies the Russian version. Indeed, had Stakhanov lived today in China, he might have received only passing mention. To reach the degree of national adulation in China that Stakhanov received in Russia, the hero must be dead — or almost so.

Also in China, labor accomplishments are secondary to ideological achievement. Three out of four top national heroes being held up for emulation in China today were not even involved in labor. All four came from military backgrounds.

Since the beginning of the year, six labor heroes have been honored with trips to Peking, where they were received by Premier Chou En-lai. They spoke before a national conference where they "rattled their audiences" with reports of how they had advanced their work through the "creative study and application of the ideas and thinking of Mao Tse-tung."

The Chinese press has indicated little of their actual production records. The stress is that the records were reached through political purity. These six labor heroes, having had their moment of glory in Peking, will return to their own areas, and little is likely to be heard of them again on a national scale.

The four top national heroes are Lei Feng, Wang Chieh, Chiao Yu-hu, and Mai Hsien-teh. Only the last one of the four is still living, and he is a sick man.

Obscenity Rule Holds

Highest U.S. Court Still Sharply Divided

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A widely divided U.S. Supreme Court refused Monday to change its legal definition of obscenity and added a new dimension: Is the seller salaciously pandering sex to the public?

In three test cases, the nine justices handed down 14 separate opinions which included angry dissents and a cross-fire of legal bickering.

Out of what dissenting justice Hugo Black called a "confusing welter of opinions and thousands of words," the following rulings emerged:

● The federal conviction of Philadelphia publisher Ralph Ginzburg on charges of sending obscene publications through the mails was upheld, 5 to 4.

● A ban by the State of Massachusetts on the sale of Fanny Hill, an 18th century novel about a London prostitute, was reversed, 6 to 3.

● The state conviction of New York bookseller Edward Mishkin for selling so-called "sadistic" publications with such titles as Screaming Flesh and The Dance with the Dominant Whip was upheld, 6 to 3.

The Ginzburg case stirred up the hottest dispute. The Philadelphia publisher was prosecuted for the mailing of three publications: "Eros," a quarterly; "Lanshin," a bi-weekly newsletter, and the Housewife's Handbook on Selective Promiscuity.

Justice William J. Brennan, in a majority opinion, said that the contents of the handbooks might not be obscene for sale to a limited audience such as doctors and psychiatrists.

But he added: "Whether the purveyor's sole emphasis is on the sexually provocative aspects of his publication, that fact may be decisive in the determination of obscenity."

Nine years ago, the court in what is known as the Roth decision held that obscenity was established if the dominant theme of the material "taken as a whole appeals to the prurient interest" of the average person and if it is utterly without redeeming social importance.

The dissenters protested adding the "pandering" condition to the Roth definition. Justice Potter Stewart, in a separate dissent, wrote: "Today, the court assumes the power to deny Ralph Ginzburg the protection of the 1st Amendment because it disapproves of his 'sordid business.' That is a power the court does not possess."

In the Fanny Hill case, the court noted that the Massachusetts court had attributed to the book "a modicum of literary and historical value." On that basis, Brennan held that it had met the "redeeming social importance" test and should not be barred as obscene.

In the Mishkin case, attorneys for the New Yorker questioned whether the terms "sadistic, masochistic" were the same as obscene and whether publications appealing to a small group with unusual sexual tastes would come under the definition of "average person."

Canada Has 'Lost Control' Over Immigration Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has not lost control over its immigration policy, Immigration Minister Marchand said in a Monday night television interview.

On the CBC program, The Sixties, he said many Europeans and Asians have come to Canada on visitors' permits and just stayed. There are some 20,000 immigrants in Canada with no status at all.

Mr. Marchand told interviewer Charles Lynch the whole matter "will have to be straightened out," but this does not mean Canada is going to leave it up to the minister, who does not have time to study each case.

Immigration policy in the past has allowed some criminals into the country, Mr. Marchand said, and more control is needed in this area. Fingerprinting as recommended by the Sedgewick report might be one course.

Asked how he felt about a large-scale, open-door policy for immigration, Mr. Marchand said there must be some measure of control. For example, if Canada took in 10,000,000 West Indians immediately it would mean economic collapse.

Mr. Marchand said he favors an immigration appeal board as recommended by the recent Sedgewick report. The board would make final decisions on immigration cases rather than the immigration department.

Mr. Strick waves his hands about, and furthermore the heckler starts behaving like a film actor.

"What you are getting is a piece of phoney cinema."

American Joseph Strick is director of a BBC unit which filmed hecklers at a meeting Saturday in Edinburgh.

Labor party publicity director Percy Clark made the charge. He said Strick "has been described by my colleagues as behaving as if he was directing a spectacular, like Ben Hur."

"What happens is this. Someone stands up to heckle and then all lights are turned on him. Every eye turns away from the platform and Hindi areas in the Himalayan foothills, with a population of 1,500,000, will be merged with the existing state of Himachal.

Labor political strategists have been talking about increasing their support of Republican liberals in Congress.

Meany said the anti-labor propaganda campaign includes arguments by some "economic litterbugs" - including some on the government payroll - that higher wages are inflationary, but that high profits, dividends and corporate salaries are not.

Disputing what he called "a vicious propaganda campaign" by business groups to sell the idea that labor has too much power, Meany said scornfully: "It is quite obvious that if we are looking around for a party to adopt or control that we don't want the Democratic party, because they can't deliver."

Most pro-labor politicians wear the Democratic label, Meany said, "but that doesn't mean that the Democratic party as a whole is the party of Hitlerism or the party of progress."

Disputing what he called "a vicious propaganda campaign" by business groups to sell the idea that labor has too much power, Meany said scornfully: "It is quite obvious that if we are looking around for a party to adopt or control that we don't want the Democratic party, because they can't deliver."

Colombia Rightists Move Up

BOGOTA (AP)—Sharp gains in Colombia's congressional election isolated extreme rightists under ex-dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla into position Monday as the National Front government's chief opponent for the presidency in May.

The balloting Sunday for 296 congressional seats handed the rightists, particularly Communists, a damaging setback.

The National Front coalition of Liberals and Conservatives maintained a safe lead in the races, but on the basis of the voting trend it will not achieve the two-thirds majority needed to push through vital social and economic reforms.

Organized Labor Disenchanted With Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany, stepping up his criticism of the Johnson administration, said Monday: "I don't buy the idea that labor needs the Democratic party."

"I'm sure it's the other way around," said Meany, giving forceful new evidence of a feeling in organized labor that the Democrats have not lived up to their political promises.

"We can't buy either party," Meany said to a legislative conference of 4,000 building tradesmen, who have been the focus of a White House attempt to cure inflation by holding down big wage increases.

Most pro-labor politicians wear the Democratic label, Meany said, "but that doesn't mean that the Democratic party as a whole is the party of Hitlerism or the party of progress."

Disputing what he called "a vicious propaganda campaign" by business groups to sell the idea that labor has too much power, Meany said scornfully: "It is quite obvious that if we are looking around for a party to adopt or control that we don't want the Democratic party, because they can't deliver."

Vandals Hit 100 Cars

TURIN (AP) — Police said a band of vandals using knives, five and acid are on a car-damaging rampage in this automobile-producing capital of Italy. They said more than 100 cars parked on city streets have been badly damaged during the last two weeks. Five cars were set afire.

Labor political strategists have been talking about increasing their support of Republican liberals in Congress.

Meany said the anti-labor propaganda campaign includes arguments by some "economic litterbugs" - including some on the government payroll - that higher wages are inflationary, but that high profits, dividends and corporate salaries are not.

He said the years under Mr. Stiefenbaker had been years of stagnation and high unemployment.

He pointed out that the rise in Canada's consumer prices in the past year has been considerably less than in the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Italy, Sweden and Japan. He maintained the government had accomplished "a remarkable degree of price stability."

But he admitted he was concerned with "curbing inflationary pressures."

Mr. Douglas warned the government not to engage in short-term tactics to fight inflation. General anti-inflationary measures, he said, would slow down economic growth and cause serious unemployment.

He maintained that price increases are hurting the people least able to help themselves—the consumers.

"The consumers are the most defenceless group in our society. They stand naked to the four winds of heaven. There is no one to protect them," he said.

Mr. Olson urged the government to have the combines investigation authorities study the food processing and distribution industries. He said food prices had risen considerably while the farmers received substantially the same money they did 20 years ago.

Each of the opposition spokesmen who took part in the debate dwelt on the plight of the farmers caught in a vicious cost-price squeeze.

Mr. Olson said his party would support Mr. Sharp on the supply bill if the finance minister took action to keep the economy in high gear but "hold back in some areas where there's too much heat."

Death Halves Quadruplets

EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP)—Two of the negro quadruplets—a boy and a girl—born to a washerwoman near here Thursday died Sunday. Hospital officials held out hope for the remaining boy and girl, though they were born prematurely. The mother, Mrs. Ntuli Pute, has six other children.

Munsinger Case Echoes

Ottawa 'Safe' for Philip?

TORONTO (CP)—Prince Philip jokingly asked reporters Monday if they thought it safe for him to visit Ottawa in view of the Munsinger affair that still echoes around Parliament Hill.

At a press conference, a reporter began to ask the prince a question relating to the Munsinger situation. But before he could finish, the prince asked: "Do you think it's unsafe for me to go there?"

NOT INVOLVED

When the newspaper man tried to continue the question, Prince Philip laughingly admonished him:

"You ought to know I'm not involved in politics—even that sort of politics."

Gerda Munsinger is the German woman involved in an alleged sex- and -security case which has recently rocked Parliament. A judicial inquiry has been ordered.

VISITED VILLAGE

The press conference was held after the prince visited Variety Village, a vocational training school for handicapped boys in suburban Scarborough. (See Story Page 2.)

Throughout the day the prince appeared cheerful and at ease with those he met. He stopped several times to speak informally with people waiting to greet him.

Light drizzle fell as Prince Philip arrived at Queen's Park to be greeted by Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe and Ontario Premier John Roberts. He spent the night at Batterwood House in Port Hope, the residence of Vincent Massey, the former governor-general.

NOTES SHUFFLE

Several hundred persons, mostly students and civil servants greeted him. Prince Philip, who hadn't met the Ontario cabinet since 1939, looked over the ranks of ministers who awaited him and remarked: "There's been a slight reshuffle."

The next stop was Toronto's new city hall where Mayor Philip Givens and Chairman William Allen of Metropolitan Toronto introduced councillors to him.

There too, he met Frank Podbraski, a Second World War acquaintance. They last met in June, 1943, when the prince's destroyer rescued then Sgt. Podbraski and Randolph Churchill, son of former British prime minister Winston Churchill, from the Mediterranean.

SHOT DOWN

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Podbraski were members of the British Parachute Intelligence Service and were shot down while flying on a "destroyer" mission to Bremen, Germany.

Mr. Podbraski now is chief engineer of the city hall. He told reporters: "Yes, he remembered me and was glad to see me. He said he recalled me even though it was so long ago."

From city hall the prince drove to the de-commissioned Canadian destroyer Haida for a 38-minute visit with officers of the Royal Canadian Naval Association.

He was received by representatives of Haida Inc., who saved the old destroyer when she was ordered into the reserve in 1963.

He then attended a private luncheon at the Toronto Club arranged by Maj.-Gen. A. Ernest Walford of Montreal with about 50 businessmen from Toronto, Montreal and Britain present.

58 $1,000 Bills Sent 'To Whom'

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal post office investigators remained puzzled Monday by the arrival of 58 $1,000 bills which were mailed anonymously to the main post office here Saturday.

The bills, apparently genuine, came to light when an envelope addressed only "to whom it may concern" popped open on its way through a cancelling machine and the currency spilled out.

Investigators still have no idea who sent the money or why.

A post office spokesman said Monday the investigation branch "feels certain," pending examination by a currency expert, that the bills are real.

Postmaster Rene Bolleau said that unless the post office hears from the sender, or can trace him or her, it looks "as if the government is going to be in $58,000."

TV Costs Given Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Political parties spent $716,955 for time on private television stations and the privately-owned CTV network during the last federal election campaign, the Commons was told Monday.

The Liberals laid out the most, spending $317,704 on telecasts. Progressive Conservatives followed with $236,133.

The New Democratic Party spent $83,847, Social Credit $25,070, Creditistas $20,173 and other candidates $24,837.

An Important Message to all STUDEBAKER owners and buyers

After serving the transportation needs of North America for more than 114 years, Studebaker has discontinued the manufacture of automobiles.

But, Studebaker of Canada, Limited wants all Studebaker owners and buyers to know that it will continue to provide nationwide availability of parts and service.

This will be accomplished through Parts Depots, listed below, which are strategically located across Canada. If a servicing dealer does not have needed parts on hand, most parts in most areas are available by overnight delivery. More than $20,000,000 worth of parts and accessories are inventoried in our North American warehouses to protect Studebaker owners' investments, and to assure them continued service from their cars. (Studebaker of Canada, Limited is still supplying parts for Packard vehicles, although production was discontinued some ten years ago.)

The national network of Studebaker Service Dealers will continue in operation — with facilities to perform any service your Studebaker may need. In communities where there is no Service Dealer, any independent garage can secure genuine Studebaker parts through the nearest Service Dealer or Parts Depot.

The 2-year or 24,000-mile warranty on Studebakers will be honored by the dealer from whom you purchased your car or by any authorized Studebaker Service Dealer. You need not have any concern regarding this warranty; its obligations will be honored for any Studebaker that is still within warranty.

This continuation of service and availability of parts is your assurance that you will be able to maintain your Studebaker in good mechanical condition for many years.

Because it is, and always has been a fine car, we are confident that you will continue to receive a full measure of value from your Studebaker.

Handsome 'Bond Stand-In' Dazzled Pretty Nadia

PARIS — He was tall, dark, handsome, and had a different car every night.

He was James Bond's stand-in in the movies, he told pretty 17-year-old Nadia. But that was just a front. He was really a secret agent himself.

Nadia believed him. And she was flattered when each night he picked her up and took her out to dinner in a different car. "We can't eat in restaurants," he told her. "The other side might find me. We'll have a sandwich in a quiet corner."

The bubble burst when police halted the "agent's" car and said it had been reported stolen. "Aha," cried the "agent," putting his foot on the gas pedal. "A rival agent disguised as a cop."

Alas, the policeman was real. Yves Payle, 21, was charged with stealing four cars on four separate evenings — and shown to be just a well-muscled department store clerk.

TAIPEI, Formosa — The National Assembly has elected Chiang Kai-shek to a fourth six-year term as president of the Republic of China. Chiang is 78.

OTTAWA — Defence headquarters has announced the retirement April 4 of Air Vice-Marshal Murray D. Lister, 54, air officer commanding Air Defence Command since August, 1964. Air Commodore A. Chester Hull, 46, of Ottawa, will be appointed acting commander.

LONDON — Actor Robert Vaughn, television's Man from U.N.C.L.E., had to take refuge in an airport men's room when 200 teen-age fans surged through police barricades to welcome him to London. When he emerged, he was knocked down by screaming girls.

OAK ISLAND, N.S. (UPI) — Robert Dumfries, the Los Angeles geologist who only recently said he was running short on nerve in his hunt for the fabled fortune buried on Oak Island, and added he would "be damned if I'll quit," has announced he is going to suspend the search for the time being.

ATLANTA, Ga. — One-time gambler Mickey Cohen was awarded $110,000 in damages by a federal district judge as the result of a lead pipe assault in the Atlanta penitentiary.

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — Veteran astronaut Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom and spacemaker Edward H. White plus rookie Eugene Chaffee were picked to fly the first Apollo spaceship into orbit, possibly for a rendezvous with a Gemini craft.

ROME — A symbolic "kiss of peace" or embrace between Pope Paul and the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, will mark the culmination of three history-making days in Rome this week when the leaders of Christendom's two greatest religious communities meet officially for the first time since 1534.

BALTIMORE, Md. — Karl Chalmers, 39, of suburban Parkville, was electrocuted as he flew a kite for his five-year-old son and a neighbor's child. Authorities said Chalmers was using a thin copper wire rather than string and that the wire touched a 33,000-volt high tension line.

Molybdenum Plant To Produce in 1967

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

A 6,000-ton-a-day molybdenum plant is scheduled to go into production by October, 1967.

The property on Lime Creek is operated by B.C. Molybdenum Corporation, a subsidiary of Kennecott Copper Corporation, the world's second largest producer of both copper and molybdenum.

"Work has been proceeding on the property for some time," said Deputy Mines Minister Patrick Mulcahy. "The news that it is to open late next year is welcome because it will be the return to big-time mining in an area which productively has been practically dormant for many years."

SECOND LARGEST

The Lime Creek property is within a few miles of the old Anyox copper refinery in Alice Arm which flourished more than 50 years ago. It is adjacent to the Round Bay property under exploration by Eldorado.

The new operation will be the second largest molybdenum producer in British Columbia with a projected output of between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 pounds of molybdenum a year.

This is just about half the output of the Endako mine west of Prince George which has been in operation for just over a year.

EXPLORING

Part of the financing of B.C. Molybdenum Corporation is expected to be offered in Canada, although the major shareholder will be Kennecott Copper.

Kennecott Copper is also active farther north in B.C. where it is doing massive exploration work in the Stikine Valley area. Here the company is hoping to develop one of the country's largest deposits of low grade copper ore.

MORE RAINBOW RUMORS

Rumors of a rich new oil strike in the Rainbow Lake area of Alberta brought such a rash of orders to the Calgary Stock Exchange Monday morning that it was forced to close down for more than an hour while the bids and offers were sorted out.

Buy and sell orders on the shares of three small independent companies — Leduc, Calmar, Monterey Petroleum and Wainwright Producers — were so heavy that the exchange staff was unable to keep pace with them.

The rumor is that B.A. Oil has made an important discovery on oil leases farmed out to them by the three independents. B.A. Oil said it had nothing to report.

There has not been such a spate of oil trading at Calgary since late 1956.

Leduc Calmar has risen from about 65 cents to $1.10; Monterey is up from 72 cents to $1.30 while Wainwright, which is listed on Toronto rose 90 cents on the day to $3.80.

COPPER RELEASED

The U.S. government is releasing from its official stockpile 300,000 tons of copper over the next few months to meet primarily the needs of defense contractors who are feeling the pinch of world shortages.

This will reduce the U.S. stockpile to 400,000 tons. The government released 200,000 tons last November.

READY BY SUMMER

Giant Soo Mines Ltd. expects to have its 180-ton-a-day mill at its Estrella property in production this summer. A construction camp is being prepared and 90 per cent of the machinery for the plant is reported to be purchased.

Giant Soo Mines Ltd. is owned 50 per cent by Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. and 40 per cent by Copper Soo Mining Co. Ltd.

Work will start on the property as soon as weather conditions permit.

BREWERY RESULTS

Canadian Breweries earned 7.3 cents a share in the first quarter of the company's fiscal year ended Jan. 31. It was reported at the company's annual general meeting Monday.

The earnings in the corresponding quarter a year ago were 6.5 cents.

OIL RESERVES GROW

Canada increased its proved liquid hydrocarbons (oil) by 645,000,000 barrels in 1965, according to the Canadian Petroleum Association.

The reserves are at a new high of 7,710,000,000 barrels and discoveries made in 1965 accounted for 196,000,000 barrels.

Natural gas reserves during 1965 rose by 961,000,000 cubic feet to a high of 44,372,000,000 cubic feet.

Electric Car Unveiled

LONDON (Reuters)—A tiny two-seater, all electric car with running costs reported to be a quarter that of a small, gasoline-driven automobile was unveiled here Monday.

A transport ministry committee is studying a prototype as a possible answer—because of its size—for motorists bogged down in traffic jams.

Fumeless and quiet, it is called the Scamp and is only seven feet long and just under four feet wide.

But there are disadvantages. Its electric batteries are heavy, weighing as much as 200 pounds, and its range is limited to about 15 to 20 miles before battery recharging.

New York Down to Five

Big Dailies Merging

NEW YORK (AP)—Three of New York City's major dailies have announced plans to merge, combining two evening newspapers into one and two Sunday papers into one. No date for the move has been set.

The proposed new firm will be known as World Journal Tribune Inc.

The evening Journal-American and the World-Telegram and Sun will be merged as the evening World Journal. The World-Telegram does not publish Sunday.

WEEKDAY MORNINGS

The Herald Tribune will continue to publish weekday mornings, but its Sunday edition will be combined with the Journal-American's under the name of World Journal and Tribune.

With one evening newspaper and one Sunday paper vanishing, Manhattan will be left with five dailies of general circulation and three Sunday newspapers.

The evening field in Manhattan will be shared by the new World Journal and the tabloid New York Post. The morning lineup will remain The Herald Tribune, New York Times and the tabloid Daily News. Sunday newspapers will include The Times, Sunday News and World Journal and Tribune.

It will mark the first alternation in the city's newspaper pattern since Hearst's tabloid morning Mirror discontinued daily and Sunday publication October, 1963.

"The economics of the newspaper industry in New York compel this move," said a joint merger announcement Monday. It was signed by John Hay Whitney for The Herald Tribune, William Randolph Hearst Jr. for The Journal-American and Jack R. Howard for the Scripps-Howard World-Telegram and Sun.

Diminishing circulation, increased production costs and change in the pattern of metropolitan newspaper competition were believed major factors in what the announcement described as a co-operative amalgamation. The merged papers will operate eventually with combined production facilities, out of a single plant.

The three newspapers had a total daily circulation last year of 1,330,000 compared with 1,670,000 in 1950.

Six Ex-Councillors Defend Ex-Mayor

SUDBURY (CP)—A parade of former municipal councillors came to the defence of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court Monday as a federal inquiry into his fitness for judicial office switched to his one-time political stamping ground.

Ivan C. Rand, retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, is investigating the judge's fitness to hold office as the result of his having accepted 7,500 shares of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company stock while he was on the bench and after NONG had received a gas franchise here in 1956 during his period as mayor.

NO UNDISCLOSED PRESSURE
Six of Mr. Justice Landreville's colleagues at the time of a long wrangle over the controversial NONG franchise—all of whom voted for the election—testified the then mayor was a leader in getting it through council but exercised no undue or improper pressure to get them to go along.

Four of them said that about a year later, when the company's first general stock offering was made, they were given options to buy small blocks at the normal subscription price and three of them did so. None regarded it as a bribe, and there had been no discussion of it when the franchise was under discussion.

RECEIVED SHARES

Mr. Justice Landreville received his shares several months earlier—in February, 1957—before NONG was listed on any exchange. According to evidence taken in Vancouver last week, a series of entries in the books of a brokerage house there saw 10,000 shares purchased in his name at $2.50 and 2,500 of these sold off at $10 to meet the $25,000 purchase price, leaving 7,500 free for the judge.

The purchase price was charged up to the account of Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, first NONG president. Mr. Farris testified it was done as a follow-up to an earlier agreement made with the mayor at a time when the mayor had been expected to join the company as an executive.

CITE LEADERSHIP

With the 56-year-old Mr. Justice Landreville seated in the courtroom at the scene of his old political triumph and defeat—he was a frequent municipal winner but lost as a Liberal in a provincial election here in 1951—one after another of the former councillors said he gave just his usual leadership in the gas franchise issue.

"He always did provide strong and aggressive leadership and I would say that in this case he was no different than in other matters," said James G. Cormack, a builder, in a typical reply as to the former mayor's behavior.

NOTICE

DEVON-PALMER OILS LTD.

It is announced by Triad Oil Co. Ltd. and Devon-Palmer Oils Ltd. that Triad (which owns 51.24% of the capital stock of Devon-Palmer) has submitted to the Board of Directors of Devon-Palmer a plan for the amalgamation of Devon-Palmer with a wholly owned Manitoba subsidiary of Triad. Under the proposed plan Triad's present share holdings in Devon-Palmer will be transferred to its wholly owned Manitoba subsidiary and will be cancelled in the amalgamation. The remaining shareholders of Devon-Palmer will receive one 3/4% preferred redeemable share of the amalgamated company at a par value of $1.25 (Canadian) for each one common share now held in Devon-Palmer. Triad will receive all of the issued common shares of the amalgamated company in exchange for its shares in its wholly owned Manitoba subsidiary.

The plan contemplates redemption of the preferred shares of the amalgamated company after December 31, 1968 cum dividend from July 1, 1968 or the date of issue, whichever is later, but in order that those shareholders who desire to do so may receive cash for their shares before redemption, Triad proposes to enter into an agreement with Canada Permanent Trust Company as Trustee for the preferred shareholders of the amalgamated company whereby it offers to buy at par ex dividend, any preferred shares offered to it after date of issue and up to the date fixed for redemption.

The Board of Directors of Devon-Palmer (with those members who are Directors or Officers of Triad abstaining) have agreed that when the necessary clearances have been obtained from the Securities and Exchange Commission and under the Trust Deed securing 5/4% Mortgage Bonds of Devon-Palmer, a shareholders' meeting will be called to approve by a two thirds majority the amalgamation agreement. Thereafter the amalgamation agreement will be submitted to the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench for approval. Assuming the Court's approval, application will be made for letters patent confirming the amalgamation and upon the issuance of such letters patent, shareholders will be advised of the mechanics of exchanging their present shares for shares of the amalgamated company.

To support the value attached to the shares of Devon-Palmer to be exchanged on a one for one basis for preferred shares of the amalgamated company, Devon-Palmer at the request of Triad has obtained an evaluation of Devon-Palmer's assets from DeColyer and MacNaughton, internationally known Petroleum Consultants. A copy of this evaluation will be submitted to the shareholders together with other proxy material at the time the notice of a general meeting called for the approval of the amalgamation is sent out.

EGG PRICE RISES

The price of eggs rose three cents a dozen for large and medium sizes in Victoria this week. The increase was due to heavy demand for eggs right across Canada.

Conciliators Break Up Three Ways in Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-member conciliation board has split three ways in a contract dispute between Canadian Pacific Airlines and the Canadian Air Line Pilot Attendants Association (CLL).

The separate reports were made public Monday by Labor Minister Nicholson. Chief issue was the amount of flight time credit for hours spent away from home base.

Two Captains, River Pilots Suspended After Crash

MONTREAL (CP)—A Department of Transport inquiry, conducted by Mr. Justice Francois Chevalier into last fall's collision between an ore carrier and a freighter loaded with grain on the St. Lawrence River, has ordered the suspension of the two ships' captains and the river pilots aboard the ships at the time of the accident.

The collision between the ore carrier Lawrencecliffe Hall and the freighter Suneck occurred during the afternoon of Nov. 16 on the river off the Ile d'Orleans, below Quebec City. No lives were lost.

FOUR PRINCIPALS

The inquiry, which closed here Saturday, ordered the suspension of certificates for the four principals for periods ranging from four to nine months.

Mr. Justice Chevalier declined to assess costs to the individuals and found neither shipping company at fault.

He recommended, however, that any ship of a certain tonnage should be equipped with VHF (very high frequency) radio—telephones and that large ships should be confined to mandatory speed limit when meeting or passing one another.

He ordered that Captain Devona Larocasse of the Lawrencecliffe Hall lose his certificate for four months and Captain Harold Syverson of the Suneck has his picked up for six months.

Pilot Louis Bender, who was aboard the Suneck, had his license suspended for nine months, and Jean Bernier, pilot aboard the Lawrencecliffe Hall, lost his for six months.

The seven-month-old Lawrencecliffe Hall was en route from Port Cartier, Que., to Ohio, with a load of iron ore pellets when she was rammed by the Suneck, bound from Montreal to Le Havre with a load of grain.

Vital Steps Taken To Avoid Blackout

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The New York State public service commission Monday criticised power companies for failure to co-ordinate their activities until they were compelled to do so in the wake of last November's massive power failure which blacked out parts of Ontario and the northeastern U.S.

At the same time, the commission said it has been "reasonably assured that the contributing factors which led to the power failure last November have been eliminated."

In its second report to Governor Nelson Rockefeller since the power blackout Nov. 9, the commission said that the power companies have taken "important steps" to ensure, "insofar as humanly possible," against a recurrence of the blackout.

NEW COUNCIL

The commission said "one of the most significant undertakings" was the formation of the Northeast Power Co-ordinating Council, representing about 95 per cent of the power capacity in the area affected by the blackout.

Football Association offered to replace the cup.

Scotland Yard held little hope that the trophy would be recovered.

"This was a professional job, and sentiment doesn't figure with these people," one detective said. "Almost certainly the cup will be melted down."

The cup, soccer's most honored prize, is insured for $30,000 ($30,000), but the gold in it is worth only about one-tenth of that.

First Look

Victoria hockey fans get their first look at Long John Henderson in Maple Leaf livery when Leafs play Vancouver Canucks at Memorial Arena Wednesday night. He joined club seven games ago after being obtained from San Francisco.

Travel worn and battle weary, Victoria Maple Leafs climbed off a plane at Pat Bay late last night to end a trip which covered about 10,000 miles, included eight games in foreign ports and kept them away from home for two weeks.

It was a trip which almost certainly cost them their chances of taking the Western Hockey League championship away from Portland Buckaroos and left them in the position of trying to avoid the Buckaroos in the playoff finale.

That little trick requires only that the Leafs protect their trip on second place, and they start the project tomorrow night at Memorial Arena against the club which is the biggest threat to their current standing—Vancouver Canucks.

GAME IN HAND

Canucks are still eight points in arrears but they have a game in hand and two chances at the Maple Leafs. Victory tomorrow for the Canucks could set up a Mount View yesterday successfully negotiated the first obstacle towards retention of the Howard Russell Cup, emblematic of the senior boys' high school rugby championships.

The defending champions, who finished league play in third place behind Mt. Douglas and Claremont, eliminated Mt. Douglas in the semi-final round by winning the sudden-death playoff at Victoria High School grounds.

Three-quarter John Hughes opened the scoring in the first half by going over for a try after Dave Hutchings had made the opening. Dennis Sommer converted, then ended the scoring in the second half with a penalty goal.

Winners and Claremont meet in the cup final at Royal Athletic Park on Friday night, starting at 7:30. In two weeks this classic title clash will come out on top both times. But it was close—the scores were 5-3 and 10-5.

Victoria's march from Victoria to the Eastern seaboard.

NONE TOO SOON

It ended in Quebec City on Sunday night, and none too soon for The Leafs, who started the trip by playing games in San Francisco.

Victoria Cougars defeated Royal Roads, 3-2, in the second game of a two-game total-point series last night to capture the Pacific Coast Junior B hockey championship. The Cougars won the first game, 6-4.

Bob Pike scored twice and Dennis Farrell added a single for the Cougars, while Dyck and Plante tallied for the Cadets.

In the 50-metre butterfly for 11 and 12-year olds, Tim Smith took fifth place in the backstroke, and Bud Flett finished fourth in the 10 and under backstroke.

The suit was filed in circuit court by William Shreiner, a Victoria lawyer who owns two shares since it was 34.

Curling Dentists Brush Up Technique

VANCOUVER (CP)—Favored Canada advanced without a stumble but defending champion United States tumbled 8-7 at the hands of the Scots here Monday night in the opening round of the International curling championship.

The Americans' loss to Scotland, a few hours after U.S. skip Dr. Joe Zabcnik had vowed his team would again take the title—without a defeat.

Canada's Ron Northcott Rink from Calgary dismantled Lars Dracke of Stockholm, Sweden, 10-5. The Weidemann rink of Trondheim, Norway, won 12-8 over the Jean Sulpic rink from Megeve, France.

Dr. Zabcnik scored a three on the fifth end and a two on the sixth to go ahead 6-2 against Dr. Zabcnik, a Moorehead, Minn., dentist who curls out of Fargo, N.D., the Scots—1-5.

Allen Glen and David Howie held off a determined U.S. rally that cut their edge to 8-7 after all ends. In the 12th and final end, Dr. Zabcnik failed to draw to an empty house on his last two shots.

Hay did not need to throw his final rock into the house with the Americaners smashed.

Esquimalt defeated Navy, 3-1, Sunday in the first game of the best-of-three promotion-relegation series in the Victoria and District Soccer League.

Unbeaten and already second division winners, the Dockers need only one more victory to assure them of a berth in the first division, a berth they lost last year.

SCORES TWICE

Mark Grenlin scored twice and John Tregear added a single for Esquimalt, while Peter Unemwiler replied for Navy. University Vikings nipped Victoria West, 1-0, on a goal by Tony Fontinello in the other second division contest.

SCORES UPSET

In first division play, Comoxian Scottish upset Gorge, 3-1, on two goals by Jack King and one by Ron Warran. John Ernie tallied for the Gorge.

Ernie Eastlake's sparkling play enabled Brodie's Bakery to draw 2-2 with Luckies. Charlie Emerson and Joe Milligan scored for the Bakery, while Ced Robb and Alex Stewart counted for Luckies.

Lake Cowichan Boy Best in Badminton

LAKE COWICHAN—Joe Saywell, 17, of Lake Cowichan was the top winner in the first Vancouver Island badminton championships.

Saywell defeated Bob McMinn, of Cordova Bay, 15-8, 15-9, in the under-19 boys' singles final, teamed up with Gerry Shackelford to win the under-19 boys' doubles, and then won the under-19 mixed doubles with partner Diane Schmeiss.

McMinn and David Sirenson, Victoria, were other three-divison winners, in the under-17 and under-15 bracket respectively.

The tournament was an overwhelming success for promoter Ray St. Denis and it may turn out to be an annual event for the area.

Results:

Girls under 15, singles—Jean McElroy, Esquimalt, 11-4, 11-3.
Boys under 15, singles—David Brown, Esquimalt, 15-12, 15-10.

FAN FARE

By WALT DITZEN

Victoria United's late-season drive for a Pacific Coast Soccer League playoff spot achieved at least temporary success when the city entry came from behind in the second half of Royal Athletic Park to defeat Westminster Royals, 2-1, Sunday.

Victory, sixth in its last seven matches, moved United into fourth place, one point ahead of University of British Columbia and only one point behind third-place Columbus. United has a match in hand on UBC but has played twice more than Columbus.

CLOSE THING

It was a close thing on Sunday as Royals opened with a fine attack. It took some fine goalkeeping by Barry Sadler, who was trying for his fourth successive shutout, to keep the score to 1-0 for the Royals.

Sadler's shutout streak was broken after 14 minutes when Metro Gera rapped a shot off an upright.

BAD BOUNCES

United started to get a better share of the play near the end of the first half and started to apply pressure after the intermission only to be balked several times in the early going by some bad bounces.

Jim Schulz finally got the tying goal after 20 minutes but a draw seemed in the making before Pete Gooding banged in the winner with only six minutes left.

LOW CROSS

In Vancouver, Burnaby Villa strengthened its grip on second place by blanking Columbus, 3-0. Normie McLeod and Wayne Thompson scored in the first half and John Communist after the intermission.

Colonist Fivepins in Semis

By WALT DITZEN

Up-Island bowlers continued their successes in the Daily Colonist's Vancouver Island Fivepin Bonspiel on Sunday as a rather hectic day brought the three events out to the semi-finals.

Taking to the heavy schedule, at Gibson's Recreations, five of the 20 visiting teams grabbed themselves a spot in the semi-finals, setting up two possible Up-Island finals.

In the first annual bonspiel in 1964 there were four Up-Island teams among the 12 prize winners, and last year Nanaimo's Famous Players and Lake Cowichan's Omovs made it an all Up-Island final in the Colonist event with Famous Players grabbing off the bonspiel championship.

IN PRIZES

Both teams returned intact this year and both are among the prize-winners, but not among the four in the Colonist event.

The four unbeaten teams are Duncan's Us Four, Campbell River Bowldrome and the Wee Five and Mizpiths of Victoria. The two visiting teams are in opposite halves of the draw, making an Up-Island final again a possibility in the Colonist event.

As results indicate, they were the most consistent among the 122 teams which started out to try and win a place of the $1,620 in cash prizes.

Wee Five made good use of a 4-1 handicap in winning five in a row and the Campbell River team, low handicap four in the Colonist semi at 127 bowled as a unit in four straight victories after drawing one of the six boys.

FIVE STRAIGHT

Mizpiths and Us Four were led to five straight wins by the fine bowling of two distaff team members.

Peggy Warde, who took a 208 average into the bonspiel, had series of 736, 717 and 703 for the Mizpiths and Leanne Kotfield, who sports a 200 average, came through with series of 781-782 and 701 for Us Four.

Up-Islanders Dominate Spiel

By WALT DITZEN

Up-Island bowlers continued their successes in the Daily Colonist's Vancouver Island Fivepin Bonspiel on Sunday as a rather hectic day brought the three events out to the semi-finals.

Taking to the heavy schedule, at Gibson's Recreations, five of the 20 visiting teams grabbed themselves a spot in the semi-finals, setting up two possible Up-Island finals.

In the first annual bonspiel in 1964 there were four Up-Island teams among the 12 prize winners, and last year Nanaimo's Famous Players and Lake Cowichan's Omovs made it an all Up-Island final in the Colonist event with Famous Players grabbing off the bonspiel championship.

IN PRIZES

Both teams returned intact this year and both are among the prize-winners, but not among the four in the Colonist event.

The four unbeaten teams are Duncan's Us Four, Campbell River Bowldrome and the Wee Five and Mizpiths of Victoria. The two visiting teams are in opposite halves of the draw, making an Up-Island final again a possibility in the Colonist event.

As results indicate, they were the most consistent among the 122 teams which started out to try and win a place of the $1,620 in cash prizes.

Wee Five made good use of a 4-1 handicap in winning five in a row and the Campbell River team, low handicap four in the Colonist semi at 127 bowled as a unit in four straight victories after drawing one of the six boys.

FIVE STRAIGHT

GOT ROLLING

A Lake Cowichan final is possible in Gibson's events. Omovs got rolling after losing their first game to drop out of the Colonist event and won five in a row to reach the semi-finals in the top half. Spitzfres started off by winning three in the Colonist event before losing.

That dropped them into the 32s of Gibson's event and they promptly went on another three-game win streak to reach the semi-finals.

FAMILY TEAM

Meeting Omovs in one semi-final are the Shamrocks, a family team of mother, father, daughter and son-in-law which has bowled as a unit for the three years of the bonspiel and which was the runner-up in Gar's Trophies event in 1964.

Shamrocks are made up of Pym and Mary Schorr (dad and mother), Eileen and Paul Redchurch.

Blow Outs, whose 616 handicap is the largest of the 18 semi-finalists, meet Spitzfres in the other Gibson's semi-final.

MOST IMPRESSIVE

Playing as Pygmy Lanes this time, was the most impressive team of all after losing their first two games.

The Vin Jany-Pete Bryski - Len Roese - Joe Perry combination consistently turned in the highest scores in winning four in a row to reach the semi-finals in Gar's Trophies event.

LATE STARTERS

Their semi-final opponents will be Reg Waggoner's Wagon Wheels, a low-handicap combination (74) which also didn't get together until it had been beaten twice.

Meeting in the other semi-final in the "C" event are Magnet Hardware and Alley Addicts, two teams who lost their first two matches, playing a preliminary round with the losers forming the bottom half of the draw.

THIRD CHANCE

They got a third chance this year in a change in the draw which had teams losing their first two matches, playing a preliminary round with the losers forming the bottom half of the draw.

Semi-finals will be played at Gibson's Recreations at 7 next Saturday night with the finals following immediately.

Army His Duty Says Clay's Dad

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Cassius Clay's father said Sunday army duty "might straighten out" the heavyweight champion. It was reported.

Cassius Clay Sr., in a telephone interview with Milwaukee Sentinel boxing writer Ray Grody from Louisville, Ky., said the champ's "duty is to go in the army if he is called."

"This is the only country Cassius knows," the elder

Clay said. "We must all obey the laws of the land. Maybe serving in the army might straighten him out. It could help him."

Clay, scheduled to fight George Chuvalo for the title in Toronto March 29, appears headed for service shortly afterwards.

Both Clay's parents told Grody they disapproved of their son's involvement with the Muslim religious sect. "He's in their (Muslim) hands and it don't look like we can do much about it," the father said. "I don't go for this Muslim stuff. Neither does my wife. There isn't anything we can do for the boy. He won't listen."

Mrs. Clay said if her son "would ask my advice on the army matter, I would tell him to accept whatever the government rules. Of course, he's old enough to think for himself and he believes what he's doing is right."

The Austin A60 Cambridge, photographed in Vancouver's beautiful Stanley Park.

Classic beauty, solid comfort...and 35 miles of fun to the gallon. All yours in the Austin A60 Cambridge!

Read why this Austin rates as the perfect family car... with features and finish that make it the finest value in today's compact car market.

Study the family in the picture. Young. Full of the fun of life. Yet sound and sensible too. Now look at their car... the beautiful Austin A60 Cambridge.

There isn't a car on the road so perfectly designed—and so ideally priced—for today's on-the-go family! BMC called in one of the world's leading auto designers—Pinin Farina—to style the Austin A60 Cambridge. Then BMC added such touches as deep-pile carpeting, leather trim, walnut-grained dashboard. Up front, BMC mounted a peppy sports-car engine that cruises at up to 35 miles to the gallon. And behind you, 19 cu. ft. of uncluttered trunk space, with the spare tucked away in its own separate compartment. Now for the clincher. You don't pay anything extra for all the extras. Windshield washers, padded dash, back-door safety locks... they all come with the car! Ask your Austin Dealer for a Demonstration. Study the Austin A60 Cambridge. Then price it. It's yours for hundreds less than cars that don't even come close in quality. Nobody puts more into car-making than BMC.

Indians United In Claim

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new Indian organization is being formed to present the federal government with the bill for British Columbia land taken over by the white man.

First meeting of the organization, to be called the Confederation of Native Indians of B.C. was held here during the weekend.

CLAIMS GROUP

The bill for B.C. land, which the Indians say was never taken by treaty or for cash, will be presented to the Indian land claims commission promised by the federal government.

Representatives of about half the province's 42,000 Indians attended the weekend meeting.

CONSTITUTION

A five-man committee was struck to talk to northern bands about the new organization, draw up a constitution and suggest an executive.

Jim Nahane, business manager of the band at Squamish, 40 miles north of here, said in an interview he has never been determined how much land B.C. Indians should be compensated for.

GOVERNMENT VALUE

The B.C. government values the province's 388,255 square miles at $2,900,000,000.

Mr. Nahane said it is planned to continue the confederation after a brief has been presented to the claims commission to provide a united voice for B.C. Indians.

COMMITTEE

Included in the five-man committee are Benjamin Paul, a member of the North American Indian Brotherhood; Philip Paul of the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation; and Ted Davidson, representing Okanagan area bands.

The Native Brotherhood of B.C., West Coast Allied Tribes, Salish Tribal Council, the Kwakiutl band and northern Interior tribes were also represented at the meeting.

Prowlers Gain Nothing

Prowlers who broke into W. R. Menzies and Co. Ltd., 811 Fort, Saturday night got nothing but exercise.

The prowlers knocked the dial off the safe and pried open a desk drawer.

Two car radios worth a total of $200 were reported stolen from Parkdale Auto Sales, 3415 Douglas.

Three cooking pots worth $80 were stolen from a suite at the Burnside Garden Village, 2830 Tilleum, Saturday night.

Romney Flays Military Costs

DES MOINES (UPI) — America is in danger of "serious inflation" as a result of the "enormous" domestic and military spending programs of the Johnson administration, Michigan Governor George Romney said.

Union Urges Purchase Of Cannery

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union will ask the federal government to purchase a fish cannery to help the Haida Indian people of Masset, in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

In a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson, the union asks the government to buy the cannery, establish a co-operative and keep the cannery—the main industry of the village of Masset—in operation.

The union originally sought a $80,000 annual subsidy from the government, but were told the cannery could not be subsidized because it is privately owned.

The union telegram says, "Many Masset people have invested their savings in this cannery on a semi-co-operative basis."

Driver Fined For Peep Hole

The only view of Shelbourne Street Roland West had as he drove along Monday morning traffic was through a four-inch-square scratched through the ice and frost coating his windshield.

West, 3315 Shelbourne, pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Monday to careless driving and was fined $50.

Prosecutor Petr Birtwell said West was driving at 15 miles an hour, holding up about seven cars. Many small children were walking in the area.

When he went to pull to the curb, West had to look through the side windows, Mr. Birtwell said.

West did not have a B.C. driver's licence and was fined $10.

The plate glass window was smashed and inside the Orient of Victoria Ltd. gift shop stood Walter Hedley Donaldson.

Donaldson, 24, 1536 Arrow, pleaded guilty to causing mischief over the value of $50 and was fined $50.

Det. Lorne Johnson said he found Donaldson inside the building shortly after midnight Saturday.

Donaldson told him he did not know what he was doing in the building, Det. Johnson said nothing was stolen.

Donaldson told Det. Johnson he had been on a drunk since Thursday night. A breathalyzer reading of .15 per cent was recorded, court was told.

Donaldson was ordered to pay $128.50 in compensation.

Anthony Francis Scott, awaiting sentence for shoplifting $75 worth of goods from a Sarnish supermarket and Colwood stores, pleaded guilty to stealing an experimental pistol from Eaton's March 11.

The pistol was worth $34.95, court was told.

Scott, 228 Constance, will be sentenced Friday on all charges.

Brian Laurie Britton, 3960 Cumberland, was remanded to March 28 on a charge of theft from the mails.

Nigeria Starts Merchant Fleet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nigeria has purchased a freighter here to form the nucleus of a nationally owned merchant fleet.

Merchant fleet, Mohammed A. Bashir, agent for Onkar Line Ltd., in the United States and Canada, said the 10,000-ton Rose S was purchased from Pacific Central Steamship agents and renamed the Chief Awolika.

The ship was built in Britain because of geography.

Courtroom Parade

He is charged with removing a registered letter after it had been deposited—at Duncan—and before it was delivered.

The charge says the letter was addressed to the Boy Scout Campaign in Victoria.

A car rolled backwards into an Esquimalt police car March 8 while its driver was being questioned, court was told.

The driver, William Powers, 1885 Grandview, was found guilty of impaired driving and remanded to March 11 for a pre-sentence report.

Little damage was done to the police car and Powers offered to go to the police station and take any sobriety tests.

He was examined by Dr. H. L. McIlwain, who said Powers was impaired.

John McGarvey, no fixed address, was remanded to March 28 for plea on eight counts of false pretences involving cash and goods worth $22.21.

He is charged with passing valuable cheques in the Colwood area in January and February.

A second offence for impaired driving meant jail for William Lyon Miller, 3578 Calumet.

Miller, found guilty last week of impaired driving, was sentenced to one month in jail. He was fined $100 or 10 days in default for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Permanent List For Elections

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Monday it will be possible to reduce the time for holding general elections only when a permanent voters' list is feasible.

He added that he hopes a study can be made of the possibility of a permanent voters' list in the next two years. Replying to a Commons question by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Windsor North Centre), the prime minister said it would be desirable to shorten the time for holding elections though it might never be possible to reduce this time to three weeks as in Britain because of geography.

Miller was involved in a collision at Douglas and Cloverdale Feb. 12. Court was told last week that Miller left the accident scene after giving his name.

He had been convicted of impaired driving in Duncan in February, 1964.

A weekend trip from Nanaimo to Victoria meant trouble for William Gueslette.

He was involved in an accident Sunday morning at Fort and Duane and he had been drinking.

He pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was remanded to April 2 for a pre-sentence report.

Eighteen-year-old Rex Johnson was found in the washroom, the Esquimalt Sports Centre March 4 with a part bottle of rum slashed in his pants.

Johnson, 478 Lampton, pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor and was fined $25.

Batman's Driving 'Vicious'

BOSTON (UPI) — Batman is television's poorest driver and a "vicious example" for the nation's youth, the Automobile Legal Association said Monday.

The car owners' group protested that in one program alone Batman was guilty of these highway safety violations:

- Crashing through safety barriers.
- Crossing highway while time safety markers.
- Parking illegally.
- Speeding.
- Failing to signal even a single turn.

Political, Economic Union Of Four Nations Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former British Air Force officer arrived here Sunday on a personal campaign for a political and economic union of Canada, Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

Group Captain Harry Brittain said in an interview he had already toured Australia and New Zealand and got "overwhelming" response to his scheme.

He wants the four countries to join in a federal union, similar to that of Canada's provinces, each country retaining certain clear powers over local affairs.

In addition, 20,000,000 Britons would emigrate to the three other countries, to alleviate the over-population of Britain and to aid under-populated Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Group Captain Brittain said he first developed the idea of union while attending a joint staff military college in England in 1947 at which officers from all four nations were studying.

"Between us we realize we could become a vast economic and political force," he said.

If reaction in Canada is as enthusiastic as it has been in Australia and New Zealand, he said, he will approach British political leaders about the proposed union.

Boy Injured When Hit On Highway

A 13-year-old boy received bruises when he was knocked down a bank on Trans-Canada Highway by a car Sunday afternoon.

Randy Pedden, 2688 Selwyn, was in good condition Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The driver of the car was identified as Thomas Roger, 270 Crease.

John Wood, 23, 7022 East Saanich, and his wife Ursula escaped with minor injuries when their car skidded out of control on Patricia Bay Highway early Sunday morning.

Seven-year-old Juanita Sheen, 1752 Lee, received a fractured left leg Sunday afternoon on Begbie when she was in collision with a car driven by Florence Brawley, 4001 Hollydene.

Close up!

This "what-is-it?" picture shows logs on the conveyor belt at a Vancouver plywood factory as the B. C. TEL closed circuit television camera sees them. Watching a conveyor belt is an extremely tedious job. Closed circuit TV takes over this essential but dreary chore, enabling the man it replaces to move on to more productive and worthwhile work.

SECOND BY SECOND, HOUR AFTER HOUR, the camera scrutinizes the flow of logs into the plant—checking for size and correct positioning on the belt.

WATCHING THE PICTURE on a monitor inside the plant, this worker can slow down or temporarily halt the conveyor belt if any serious irregularities develop in the flow.

WITH NEW INDUSTRIAL APPLICATIONS increasing every month, B.C. TEL closed circuit television is also used for many public service purposes. Here it helps pathologists at a Cancer Institute. The cost of a basic installation is surprisingly low.

AT THIS BIG SECONDARY SCHOOL closed circuit TV is of growing assistance to the teaching staff. There is virtually no end to its possibilities in modern business. Check how it might help your business by calling our Marketing Department this week—naturally without obligation.

Library Draft Plan Too Costly—Bryant

Reeve Ray Bryant of Esquimalt Monday afternoon told an inter-municipal library board meeting, Esquimalt can't afford to enter the regional library draft agreement.

The drafted plan calls for a levy of all participating municipalities approaching $3.50 per capita.

In Esquimalt this is two mills, Reeve Bryant told a meeting at city hall Monday.

SPLIT COSTS

"We have a present library costing us about $14,000 a year," he said. "You are asking us to accept one that would cost us $42,000."

He proposed costs be split, part being tabulated on a basis of library usage, part on a head tax.

After the meeting he pointed out Esquimalt pays about $2 per capita for health services.

"The library would be $3.50," he said. "We think health is more important."

He proposed a "rated usage figure" for the first two or three years.

Amendment Fails

Solid Sacred Vote Backs Riding Bill

Last phase of the redistribution battle was fought in the legislature Monday night when controversial Bill 32 was given third and final reading.

Bill 32 will become law when royal assent is given by Lieutenant-Governor Penikese on the day the House prorogues, and the next provincial election will be fought along the new riding boundaries.

A last-ditch effort by Opposition Leader Strachan to turn the bill back to the Angus royal commission for further study went down in overwhelming defeat.

NEW REPORT

Mr. Strachan moved an amendment to third reading, for the bill to be withdrawn and sent back to the commission along with instructions that a new report should be returned to the House within the next 30 days.

He explained it was "unfair" to have tied the commission's hands with restrictive terms of reference which were later ignored by the government and said that "in all fairness we should have some non-partisan advice."

But when a division was called the NDP leader's amendment was defeated by 26 to 13, with Frank Calder (NDP, Atlin) supporting the Socreds and the NDP and Liberals joining forces in opposition.

NO SOCREDS

When third reading was called, not a single Socred voted against the government bill, although a number of backbenchers had indicated earlier that they could not support it.

This vote was 26 to 15, with Frank Calder again supporting the Socreds.

B.C. Hydro 'Best Gem'

The Pacific Great Eastern Railway is the shining jewel of the Socred government but B.C. Hydro is "the great diamond," Premier Bennett told the legislature Monday night.

Mr. Bennett told the House that a "great highway program, great railway, ferries, energy development and educational system" are the factors that build a great nation, a great country.

Storm on Way

By BOB PETHICK
The breeze which denied the sun its full right to warm Victoria Monday might have been misleading, but according to all statistics it was spring.

At the moment, at any rate, this appears to be achieved by the only situation with a storm on its way here today and a good chance of rain in the evening.

It became spring officially when the sun crossed the

Bathurst Colonist, Victoria, 15

Cold Elsewhere

'Brrr' of Weekend Echoes Into Spring

equator Sunday, but the work was strictly official.

The weather's approach to the first day of spring left a lot to be desired — in fact practically everything.

Winds were rampant Friday night and Saturday. A sudden wind storm made chaos out of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's inter-city yacht race. Saturday night it blew some more and snowed into the early morning keeping temperatures under the 50-degree mark.

Things weren't any better on the Mainland where the coldest March 21 on record was recorded — but this seems to be the only record broken. Throughout the province there was general freezing and Sunday drivers were greeted by icy roads.

In Washington State, citizens were heard to mutter and shake their fists at the sky after a five-inch snowfall led up to spring's coming. Power lines in Olympia were snapped or shorted by falling tree branches heavy with snow. So for the moment the warm spring picture is a gloomy one and a much uttered sound in the next few days will be brrr.

And if anyone had a plan to get in a little early spring sunbathing — forget it.

Student Cast Puts Over Big Message

By DON GAIN

The musical, For Heaven's Sake, won't replace The Sound of Music and its cast won't win any Grammys. But there's no mistaking its message.

Unions Named In Writ

A B.C. Supreme Court injunction was served on two union locals and various individuals Monday in an effort to stop picketing at the construction site of the new Red Lion Motor Inn, 3860 Douglas.

The injunction specifically named the Victoria locals of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Individuals named included P. B. V. Green, John Shipley, John Schibill and W. Isbister.

LINE NOT SHOWN

It was drawn up by David Hummel, president of Red Lion Motor Inn and attorney for the company, as well as the construction company involved in the work, Marquardt Hotel Construction.

But union members and counsel for the picketers, Louis Lindholm, would not say whether the picketers were in any way connected with the unions.

"I expect all those named will seek representation — and I will be asked to render assistance. I don't think these (named) people will allow the matter to go by default."

APPLICATION

He had said earlier in the day:

"My advice to the picketers has been that they refrain from further activity at the site. Very soon we'll be making application to have the injunction removed."

Mr. Hummel said: "We will not be forced by outside intimidation" into joining the carpenters' union, or any union.

NOTHING PERSONAL

"We bear no personal ill will. Trade union officials have always been welcome on our job sites," he said.

"If right be on their side, they will win without violating the law, and we will abide by the decision of our workers."

Various affidavits were filed by Stephen Marquardt indicating to the B.C. Supreme Court his side of the picketing fight.

FACE RUIN

In the affidavits, he said that the two companies involved — Marquardt Hotel Construction and The Red Lion Motor Inn Ltd. — would be "ruined financially" if the picketing continued.

Three sub-contractors had declined to carry out their obligations to the companies, he stated, and certain suppliers had refused to cross the picket line.

He estimated loss of gross revenue due to the picketers at $10,000 a day.

NO DISPUTE

Mr. Marquardt pointed out that no strike was involved; that at no time had there been any trade union dispute.

He further testified that at a vote taken on Saturday afternoon, of the 20 employees, 18 voted against joining the union, one ballot favored the union and one ballot favored the union.

"If it was of advantage to the employee concerned."

Which is probably as it should be because it is produced by the Northwest Christian College of Eugene, Ore., and its players are students at the college.

EVERYDAY LIFE

The message that came smashing through to the audience of about 700 in McPherson Playhouse Monday night was one of applying religion to everyday life.

That's probably what the sponsors, First United and Metropolitan United Churches, were aiming at with this one-night production.

SOLILOQUIES

To go or not to go — to bed — that is the question, soliloquized Vicki Musgrave. Equally in the dark as to what to do about his biological urges was Gaden Finley.

In a spotlight-punctuated wedding of two soliloquies, the boy and girl, in paraphrased Shakespeare, asked themselves the question.

HE TOOK RAP

"He took the rap for me," Harold Moeller declaimed to the audience, "but I don't see what I ever did to deserve the rap He says He took for me."

"Jesus was a flop at 33," a young businessman sings to a friend over a drink at a bar. "He could have been successful but instead of climbing up He climbed a cross."

NEVER ADJUSTED

"He just never was adjusted, so He spent His whole life bused, and He never got promoted on the job."

In similar vein, the people at the bar brand Jesus a flop because He saved no money, had no Dun and Bradstreet rating, lived with ordinary people rather than the elite, "would rather contemplate a flower than enjoy a cocktail hour" had no grey flannel suit, no swimming pool.

SUCCESSFUL MAN

The thing they couldn't understand was why this flop "is called the most successful man to live on earth."

The musical came close to professionalism at times. Vicki Musgrave received a sustained ovation for her song Alm for Heaven, and Gail Zilkoski was excellent as the party girl who sang Gimme God Blues.

ORCHESTRA NEEDED

The production was accompanied by a piano, bass viol and drums. A full orchestra would have beefed up the production, but the lack of it didn't cut down on the message.

View Royal Decides Saturday

Voters in the View Royal peninsula will go to the polls Saturday to decide the Esquimalt merger issue.

The vote, which will be held at the Craigflower Auto Court, 101 Island Highway, is limited to people owning property in the peninsula area.

The peninsula area is bounded on the northeast by the centre line of George waters; on the southeast by Esquimalt Indian reserves and Esquimalt Harbor, and on the northwest by a section line dividing Esquimalt district sections two and three roughly along the E & N railway line.

Applications Pour In For Tour

Vintage car owners are flocking to join the centennial vintage car run, the Canadian Confederation Committee of B.C. announced Monday.

Close to 20 applications have been received already. Only 30 will be chosen for the tour, to begin in New Westminster, swinging through the interior and end at Victoria. Applications to join the run will be accepted until May 15.

So far, the oldest car registered is a 1905 Stanley Steamer, owned by Gerald Wellburn of Duncan. Mr. Wellburn has also applied to enter a 1910 Russell touring car, and a 1911 Mitchell speedster.

Red Ensign Boosters To Meet

The Red Ensign Club of B.C. may hold its annual meeting and convention in Victoria on May 22. The announcement was made Saturday at the establishment of Hancy and District Branch No. 4 in Hancy.

"I can think of no better day to hold a convention of Red Ensign Club supporters," said national president Douglas Taylor, "and the best place in this Centennial year is the capital city."

'Speculators Benefit'

Oak Bay to Fight Tax Assessment Plan

Oak Bay council prepared Monday to fight legislation introduced in the legislature last week that would limit tax assessment increases to five per cent or less a year.

Council authorized Reeve Allan Cox to take the matter to an inter-municipal meeting today and to explore fighting the measure through the executive of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

"Taxes are based on market value of the land," Mr. Cox said. "If it goes up, the owner could be making fantastic money on speculation, but he

School Construction 'Not Political Topic'

By BILL STAVDAL

The politics of school construction was denounced before the Greater Victoria School Board Monday.

The discussion brought a renewed call for abolition of plebiscites on school building bylaws.

What brought it on was the suggestion by district superintendent John Gough that Greater Victoria is not taking advantage of new education legislation because it wouldn't be a good idea to put another money vote to the people this year.

NO MORE YET

The suggestion was that ratepayers, having rejected one plebiscite last December and passed it on the second try this month, aren't in a mood to spend any more for a while.

But with more classrooms the district could take advantage of the new by-approved lower teacher-pupil ratio — 37 to 1, said Mr. Gough. It could also offer a wider range of vocational courses.

800 Lions Leave Like Lambs

A pride of 800 Lions has left Victoria with barely a roar as members of 72 some clubs headed home after a spring gathering.

Members came from B.C. and Washington to talk about Lions education.

One of the keynote speakers was Edward Lindsay of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., president-elect of Lions International.

Education Lagging In District

Peter Bunn, chairman of the board's buildings and grounds committee, declared:

"It seems morally very wrong that the future of our children is dependent on political footballs — the political whim of the people."

WICKED

"This is a wicked thing," In response to questioning Mr. Gough conceded:

"We have done virtually nothing on the next referendum. There is a time when it is opportune to present a referendum, and there is a time when it is not."

Asked Mr. Bunn:

"Shouldn't we try to get rid of this anachronism — this referendum business?"

SHOULD HAVE VOTE

Mr. Gough replied:

"But when people pay taxes, they should have a vote."

Mr. Bunn pointed out that only B.C. and Manitoba hold plebiscites on school construction, and only B.C. requires a 60 per cent affirmative vote.

NO ACTION

Trustees voiced no opposition to the idea of eliminating referendums, though the board took no action. School boards generally consider them unnecessary, feeling that they are elected to make such decisions.

In other business, the board agreed to endorse the plea of the Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children for a government-paid teacher to instruct troubled youngsters in a special class.

At present a volunteer is receiving only token payment for managing a class of six at the provincial mental health centre on Cook Street. She will soon leave.

The board was notified by the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association that it views with "great concern" plans for next fall's annual salary bargaining. The Island branch of the B.C. School Trustees' Association is studying a proposal to negotiate with teachers from a united position.

The teachers called the action "unilateral decision," and asked clarification.

The board will reply that no firm action has yet been taken.

MLA Fights Water Bill

'Drain Beaver, Reclaim Land'

By JACK FRY

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane made a lone, unsuccessful bid Monday to block second reading of a bill under which water rights in Greater Victoria will revert to the Crown.

He suggested in the legislature that the city of Victoria could drain Beaver Lake, reclaim 250 acres of land and make $1,250,000 through sale of this land at $5,000 an acre.

"Beaver Lake is not a lake at all, it is an impounded body of water. The land under that water is owned by the city of Victoria, which has a perfect right to drain that land, reclaim it and put it to any use it likes," replied Mr. Macfarlane.

He told the House that "Central Saanich is now getting its water free — how is it going to help to have them charged for the water?"

Mr. Macfarlane asked the government to postpone its bill until next year, so the municipalities concerned could have more time to discuss their problems.

northern part of the Saanich Peninsula.

He said the only way to solve the domestic water problem in this area was through "consultation and negotiation over a period of time" by the municipalities involved.

"It cannot be handled any better with this legislation than without it, and what this would do is force these municipalities apart," said the Liberal M.L.A., John Tisdale (S.C., Saanich). Interjected: "They residents of northern Saanich Peninsula want a contract."

'How Will it Help?'

"Is the government going to force onto the other municipalities in this area a contract that is unfair . . . that people in other parts will have to pay for water to Central Saanich?" replied Mr. Macfarlane.

He told the House that "Central Saanich is now getting its water free — how is it going to help to have them charged for the water?"

Mr. Macfarlane asked the government to postpone its bill until next year, so the municipalities concerned could have more time to discuss their problems.

Mr. Tisdale said this amendment of the Water Act would be the "swan song" to the Act of 1873 which gave Victoria control of water sources in this area.

He said people in the northern part of the Saanich Peninsula would "rest peacefully" once the legislation was passed.

Victoria's second M.L.A. J. Donald Smith told the House that any further delay in bringing in this legislation would only add more confusion to that which has already been in existence for a number of years.

No Reason Given

Resources Minister Williston told the House the member from Oak Bay had given no reason why the act should be pulled back at this time.

"It is the intent of the government before this act is proclaimed that all the problems and licensing and needs of Victoria will be fully taken care of," he said.

"I want to assure the House and the people of Victoria that rights to use water will be safeguarded to an even greater extent under this legislation than they were formerly."

The minister said that under present legislation, Elk-Beaver Lake were not safeguarded for either recreational or water use, and nobody had ever determined how much water could be removed from there while safeguarding it for recreational use.

It appeared that recreational values were far more important than water use at Elk-Beaver Lake, and Central Saanich might be mistaken in assuming the lake was an answer to its water problem. Mr. Williston continued.

The answer to the water needs in the rapidly expanding northern Saanich Peninsula lay in the extension of water pipes running from the Sooke hills, but it might take a year or more to resolve this problem, he said.

GOLDEN AGE
James Bay Golden Age Club will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday, in the Niagara Street hall.

In busy family living centres, flexibility is especially important. Few modern families can afford, in expense or space, a room that serves only one function. Instead, a family living centre must be versatile enough to handle many activities. This traditional living area offers a roomy dining place that doubles as a study centre and game area. There's an informal conversation centre in front of the wood-burn fireplace that's put to daily use by the family. The fireplace actually works as a cooking area, too. Potatoes, baked beans, steaks can be prepared over the coals. —(Copyright, 1966, Better Homes and Gardens)

After Beatrix

Predict Monarchy End

By CAROL KENNEDY

AMSTERDAM (CP) — "Beatrix will be the last queen we shall have, you'll see." It was the night after the ten-ation-filled wedding of Crown Princess Beatrix of The Netherlands to Claus von Amsberg, an event which has brought the whole future of the Dutch monarchy into critical question.

In one of Amsterdam's smoky, crammed, convivial bars, students sang along with the Barbara Streisand record on the juke-box; Memories of the day's smoke-bombs and jeering demonstrators were drowned as the Dutch beer flowed.

The pale-faced Dutch university student who predicted the monarchy would come to an end with Beatrix was neither anti-German nor one of the "provocateurs" — provocateurs or aggressive beatniks—who had tried to disrupt the wedding.

He expressed no bitterness against the former Bonn diplomat who would one day be prince consort. In his view the country was simply evolving slowly but inevitably towards a republic.

"We are not, how shall I say, squeezed in by tradition like Britain," he said, making a gesture with both hands to suggest a strait-jacket.

"There you will probably have a monarchy forever. But here society is changing all the time, and a republic must come in the end."

HOLDS POWER

The Dutch sovereign has slightly more constitutional power than the British monarch. Under Holland's multi-party system, for instance, it is the queen who decides who will lead the coalition cabinet. Generally it is the leader of the largest party, but not automatically.

But Dutch people stress the democratic nature of their system, often using the symbolism of Amsterdam's three major encircling canals to illustrate the preeminence of the people over the monarchy. The inner circle, the Herengracht or Gentlemen's Canal, takes precedence, they say, over the Keizersgracht—Emperor's Canal and the Prinsengracht—Prince's Canal.

The dispassionate views of the students in the bar have been widely echoed throughout Holland, where there has been virtually only one major topic of conversation since Queen Juliana announced her eldest daughter's controversial engagement last June.

At that time, opinion polls showed only 11 per cent of Dutch people strongly opposed to the match. But the proportion of resentment has been much higher in Amsterdam—some say 50 per cent—because of the fate of the capital's 100,000 Jews under the Nazi occupation and because Amsterdam has the reputation in the words of its mayor of being a "troublesome city"—the citizens individualistic and strongly socialist-minded.

ABDICATION UNLIKELY

It has been rumored that if Beatrix's husband managed to win over the Dutch in the first few years of marriage, Queen Juliana might give up the throne to her eldest daughter just as Queen Wilhelmina did in 1948, three years after Juliana and her children returned from their wartime haven in Canada.

But the authoritative view in court circles after the wedding was that abdication now is highly unlikely.

Queen Juliana, a motherly-looking, bespectacled woman of 56, is deeply loved in Holland.

The 1956 episode of the faith-healer called in to cure the half-blind Princess Christina, though it nearly caused a constitutional crisis, did nothing to impair the affectionate tolerance with which Juliana's subjects regard her mystical leanings.

Breuer Prince Bernhard, the German-born consort who led the Free Dutch during the Second World War, and now acts as a globe-trotting exporter-royal for his country, is also widely popular.

Despite formation last year of an embryo—and already split—republican party, the monarchy under Juliana is firmly rooted in Dutch loyalties.

"If a referendum were held today, maybe up to 95 per cent would vote for the monarchy."

Top "agents" in the kitchen find milk's the greatest for vital young appetites. That cool refreshing flavor saves the day, when active young folks gather with their friends or stalk the kitchen on their own.

Quick-On-The-Draw
When young moderns feel inventive, be quick-on-the-draw to supply the "fixings" for delicious shakes and coolers. It's easy to do since milk's a perfect match for many of the items on your everyday shopping list.

Thick 'N' Creamy
For sandwich snacking time choose an Apple Orbit. Shake or mix together 1 cup apple sauce with 1 cup milk and 6 scoops of vanilla ice cream. Add a dash of nutmeg and vanilla and pour into tall glasses or gay mugs.

Calendar Check
The first spring day deserves something special by way of Peach 'N' Pineapple Refreshers. Easy to do in the blender with ½ cup drained sliced peaches, ½ cup pineapple juice, 1 pint vanilla ice cream and ½ cup milk. This makes plenty for four.

Cool and Calculated
For nutrition-minded mothers with breakfast skippers in the family... here's a Coffee 'Nog. Beat 2 eggs well, add 4 teaspoons powdered instant coffee and 2 cups cold milk. Flavor to taste with sugar, salt and vanilla. Now then, capture the guilty parties on their way out the door.

Waiting at Headquarters
When the young ones check in after school, reward them with Pineapple Punch and cookies. Just before serving stir a tablespoon or two of frozen concentrated pineapple juice into a tall glass of cold milk. Serve "as is" or float a small scoop of lemon sherbet on top.

A Slick Trick...
for adding a gay touch to impromptu gatherings starts with chocolate milk. Make your own or buy it already flavored. Pour into pretty glasses, add a dash of whipped cream and sprinkle with shaved chocolate.

Ferry Trip Impresses Down Under Visitors

When Mr. and Mrs. John Tisdalle were in New Zealand, for meetings of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association in December, they met two charming New Zealand girls. Miss Diana Dickie and Miss Prue Polson mentioned plans for a trip to North America, so the Tisdalles, naturally, asked them to visit if they came anywhere near Victoria. The girls have done just that. They arrived in Vancouver on the Orana on Sunday, and have come to spend a few days in Victoria before continuing their four-month tour of Canada and the United States. Both Miss Polson and Miss Dickie live on sheep ranches near Wanganui, which is about 130 miles northwest of Wellington. Friends of the daughter of Prime Minister Holyoake of New Zealand, they were guests when parliamentarians from the Commonwealth toured Brandt's, a leading sheep ranch of the district. It was then that the invitation to visit Victoria was offered and accepted. Though they haven't had time to see much of British Columbia yet, the travellers were enthusiastic about the beautiful ferry trip from Vancouver, during which they spent most of the time on the bridge as guests of the Captain. After their three-day visit here, they will continue their North American tour. Later they plan to fly to London and hope to get jobs in England. Like Canadian girls, young New Zealanders are travelling a great deal these days. Most prefer Europe, but a number of New Zealand girls are emigrating to Canada to work, the girls reported.

Mrs. R. J. Bower ...

South Africa — Whipping Boy of UN

"If a man does away with his traditional way of living and throws away his good customs, he had better first make certain that he has something of value to replace them."

That old Basuto proverb was quoted by Mrs. R. J. Bower last night as she addressed the annual meeting of the Municipal Chapter IODE on the current situation in the Republic of South Africa.

In presenting a broad picture of the dilemma faced by this great continent, Mrs. Bower pointed out that apart from external pressures in a world which condemns her policies of apartheid, South Africa faces the formidable task of ruling 11 national groups.

These 11 national groups are made up of 3,000,000 whites, 1,000,000 Cape Coloreds, 600,000 East Indians and eight African ethnic groups which total more than 12,000,000.

"In the past few weeks Africa has again been making headlines with violence and bloodshed," she said, "Indeed from the Sahara to the Cape of Good Hope, the only oasis of peace seems to be that much maligned favorite whipping boy of the United Nations—the Republic of South Africa."

"As you know, South Africa is dedicated to preserving white rule. This goal was set many years ago when it was realized that if the democratic principle of one man, one vote was instituted, the white man would no longer be able to retain his position of political supremacy. The result is that today only the white man in South Africa is entitled to vote, although he is outnumbered by other races four to one."

In tracing the history of the republic, Mrs. Bower gave a graphic picture of a few of the problems issuing from its racial groups. Pouring into Africa were the British, the French, the Dutch, the Germans and the East Indians. Then there are the Cape Coloreds, who are mixed-blood descendants of the Hottentots and other peoples who mingled with the first white settlers. Added to this are the Cape Malays, whose ancestors came from Southeast Asia as slaves.

Mrs. Bower went on to speak of the planned Bantu states, eight of which have been planned and created by the Verwoerd government.

"The one which is in the most advanced state of development as an African-governed State, is the Transkei," she said. "It is the home of 3,000,000 Xhosa."

"Politically the Bantu are developing in the foundations of their traditional tribal forms of government and provision has been made for tribal authorities, regional authorities and territorial authorities which come under central legislative assembly."

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. R. R. Jeffels.

Caught Napping

EAST HAM, England (CP)—It was embarrassing enough when Ann Bane, 28, fell asleep in the lavatory of a London biplane and was locked in for the night, but when police found a burglar rifling the safe at 4:15 a.m. they assumed she was his helper. In court the next day she explained the mix-up and was dismissed with a warning to take her naps at home in future.

Conway and Mrs. F. Satter.

COLFAX REBEKAH

Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1 will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in the IOOF Hall, 1323 Douglas Street.

Now Every Woman is entitled to look YOUNGER!

A new startling discovery has been made by a small group of skin physiologists. They found a way to make the skin of face and throat actually drink in pure water, to quickly gain an appearance of fresh, smooth youthfulness it has had for years. Facial lines, particularly around the eyes, and throat creases are said to move or "settle" as this water gets beneath the skin's surface to push them out of sight.

By special arrangement with the discoverers of this remarkable technique, a semi-lotion has been formulated which makes home application easy, pleasant and effective. The name of this preparation is 2nd Debut. This amazing discovery fresh from an American triumph, now comes to you—if you want to make heads turn your way once more and again enjoy the rapid attention bestowed upon you in that first Spring!

Your face will look younger, you will acquire a fresher smoothness, which restores the extra all-important impact of the beauty your facial features have always had. Get a bottle today. The 4 oz. bottle is $3.75, clinical trial only $1.75.

HOW 2nd Debut TAKES YEARS OFF YOUR LOOKS

The active ingredient that enables 2nd Debut to make facial skin younger has been named CEF-200. It penetrates the outer layer of skin and carries millions of tiny droplets of pure water that the skin has lost during its natural aging process. This water finds its way under the lines and wrinkles, and as it accumulates there, pushes those unwanted indentations upward. Progressively the face and neck fill out and look smoother and younger again. The result is startling.

This ingredient (CEF-200) is compounded into smooth-flowing and delightful-to-use 2nd Debut. Use nightly (and daily under make-up) so that during 24 hours of the day it is carrying water into your skin bringing it new life, new youth and new beauty.

FOR THE YOUNGER WOMAN TOO!
The lady in a hurry may more quickly lift her face out of lines and wrinkles with 2nd Debut containing CEF-200.

Gallery director at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, Colin Graham, holds a small frame of embroidered work completed between 1800 and 1830. The picture is woven of human hair. Mr. Graham feels that collection now on show is probably one of finest on North American continent.—(Robin Clarke)

Display One of Finest

One of the most interesting decorative art exhibitions in North America is now on display at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria—the collection of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Bartholomew.

Gallery director Colin Graham readily agrees that the historic embroidery collection is probably the most complete on the continent.

There are 47 pieces in all, ranging from the 16th century to the present day.

Examples of these early works are almost unobtainable today, Mr. Graham said.

One piece of note is a small landscape woven of human hair, and completed somewhere between 1800 and 1830.

Mr. Graham said he has learned that the Bartholomews will be bequeathing the entire collection to the gallery in due course.

He said much of the gallery's support comes from such donors who realize the gallery's value as a showplace of decorative arts.

Young School Bands Take Two Stages

By BERT BINNY

Youthful school band players took the stage Sunday afternoon at the McPherson Playhouse and Belmont High School but the Centennial caravan display at the latter location had to be cancelled.

One of the drivers fell while making an adjustment to the caravan the day before at Sooke and the Langford appearance was delayed until Monday.

An unusual and creative gambit was added to the Lansdowne Junior High program at the McPherson when Grade 8 students presented their own poems and musical compositions.

FOUR SCHOOLS were represented at the two concerts. At Belmont, some 55 students formed a composite band from Belmont and Elizabeth Fisher Schools. The playhouse program had Mount Douglas High School in the first half and Lansdowne Junior High in the second and, in all these cases, band membership was just about equally divided between girls and boys.

Conducted by Lt.-Cmdr. H. G. Cuthbert and performing before a good-sized audience, the Belmont band romped through a pleasantly varied program. They provided marches, like National Emblem and John Philip Sousa's Steel King; the musical comedy and dancing songs came to the fore with items from Brigadoon and Offenbach's Gaite Parisienne. Streets of Athens was a concert item and they threatened the plaster on the ceiling with swinging modern numbers like Riffin' the Blues and Trumpets Ole!

Here is a capable and versatile band, always improving the standard of its performances and acquiring enviable precision.

Meanwhile, back at McPherson Playhouse, conductor R. Bergeson led the Mount Douglas band through an interesting list of items. Master of ceremonies was student council president Keith Thomson.

FINE SOLOISTS

There were four fine soloists. French horn player Corinne Dunn was heard in a Rondo by Mozart, and baritone player Robert Baxter in Alfred Reed's dramatic Seascapes. Trombonist Kahlen Wood was featured in the famous Londoner's Air. Bassoonist David Bennett put bassoonist David Foster in the spotlight.

Other band items ranged in time from Frescobaldi's Toccata (1583-1643) to Don Gillis' Tango Lullaby along with marches and, as at Belmont, the concert item, Streets of Athens.

Lansdowne Junior High opened its program with something different and more than usually creative.

Climbers Head Straight Up

KLEINE SCHEIDEGG, Switzerland (AP) — In brilliant weather, a three-country team pushed slowly up the north wall of 14,046-foot Mount Elger Monday.

The German and Anglo-American teams have abandoned competition and pooled their forces to try to reach the summit over the direct vertical route.

The climbers hoped to reach a treacherous glacier known as the Spider late in the day. From there on it is still at least three days to the summit.

TOURISTS MULTIPLY
Yugoslavia welcomed nearly 8,000,000 foreign tourists in 1965, compared with 763,000 in 1958.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Men and women screamed in fright Monday as a runaway skilift gave them a wild backwards ride.

Many of the estimated 110 persons on the chairlift to the top of 4,000-foot Grouse Mountain in suburban North Vancouver jumped for their lives.

Late reports said 10 were injured sufficiently to require hospital care, most suffering back injuries. Another three were treated in hospital for such minor injuries as twisted ankles.

Passengers, using the lift to reach a ski slope high on the mountain, dropped from as high as 30 feet. Most fell into snow that was eight feet deep in places. Some did not bother to take their skis off before they dropped.

Others remained in their chairs and were rescued. The lift finally came to a stop after the operators pulled an emergency brake.

Dr. W. J. Jory, an eye specialist from London, England, was on the lift.

"STARTED TO SCREAM"

"People started to scream... Then some of them started to jump off," he said.

"The man beside me on the chairlift shouted: 'There is going to be a hell of an accident.'"

"I looked around and saw the people jumping off," he said.

He said some passengers dropped on top of others. He undid his skis and dropped to soft snow.

MOST WANTED

Ray Pollard, a member of the Grouse Mountain Ski Patrol, said he waited until his career chair passed a spot called "Hell's Gate Dropoff" then leaped.

"When the lift started to go backwards, some people jumped but most people waited for some time. There were people jumping all over the place."

"It wasn't just the women who were screaming."

BROKEN BACK

A spokesman for Grouse Mountain Resorts, operators of the lift, said passengers panicked.

"If the people hadn't jumped off, they very likely would have been all right."

Dr. T. F. H. Armitage said one of the victims suffered a broken spine. Two others were suspected to have the same thing.

ADDICT GIVEN

Prison Term

EDMONTON (CP) — Gordon Francis, 38, of Vancouver was sentenced to three years in Prince Albert penitentiary Friday on 11 counts of passing forged medical prescriptions to obtain barbiturates.

Francis pleaded guilty to the charges but complained he kept falling into drug addiction because no treatment was available for his particular problem.

Magistrate J. C. Coughlin said: "I personally dislike sentencing you to prison because you committed these crimes solely to obtain drugs, but I can't overlook the breaking of the law."

Animal Film Somewhere In Saanich

A wildlife movie will be filmed somewhere on the Saanich Peninsula next week by a Hollywood film company, Victoria zoo owner Rudy Baerach said Monday—but he did not say where.

He said it would be up to the makers of the film to release locations.

The animals used in the picture will be kept at his zoo on Durrance Road.

About 30 animals will be involved, including deer, sea lions, raccoons, and possibly bobcats and lynx.

Integrity Expensive

Star Spurns Role Of a Bigot

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Integrity can be expensive. It cost actor Jack Palance $150,000 when he refused to portray a racial bigot in a new movie.

Now $150,000 is a great deal of money, even to a star. Palance, doubtless, could use the cash. But it meant playing a Negro biter in The Dirty Dozen and he wants no part of it.

GREAT FULLBACK

Moreover, the Negro in question was to be Jimmy Brown, the great Cleveland Browns fullback and sometime actor. According to Palance he could have stolen the picture, especially by playing scenes with the inexperienced Brown. But no dice.

Why doesn't Palance simply play the role, take the money and get out?

"Because this business of being an actor and playing a part and letting it go at that is a lot of baloney," he said.

DESPISES BIGOTS

"You don't separate yourself from your race. You can't. I don't want to play a Negro biter for the excellent reason that I despise that kind of person. Furthermore, some people in the audience will relate to the character and agree with what he's doing."

"Well, I can't do it any more than I could play a Nazi murderer. Movies are beginning to romanticize them."

Regional Drama Winners Unsure of Finals Berth

By The Canadian Press

Winners of four regional drama festivals have been selected, but none have been assured a berth in the Dominion Drama Festival finals in Victoria May 15-21.

Festivals in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Eastern Quebec ended during the weekend and the New Brunswick competition wound up the previous weekend.

Nine other festivals will be held between now and April 2.

FIVE OF SEVEN

The University of New Brunswick Drama Society took five of seven major awards with its presentation of Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman in that province's festival.

Adjudicator Jacques Zouvi of Montreal also adjudicated the P.E.I. festival which ended Saturday night, awarding a trophy for the best play to the Summerside RCAF Players production of the American comedy Under the Yum Yum Tree.

Mr. Zouvi will select regional winners from Nova Scotia and Newfoundland and choose the best of the four to represent the Atlantic zone in the Victoria finals.

REGINA WINS

The Regina Little Theatre Society won the Saskatchewan festival with its production of The Magistrate and in Eastern Quebec La Marmite players of Jonquiere took top honors with La Bonne Plaque (The Soft Job).

Best acting awards went to UNB's David Attis and Kate Lewis. Prof. Alvin Shaw who directed the university entry was named best director by Mr. Zouvi.

Summerside actor John Perry was chosen best actor in the P.E.I. festival while the Summerside group's director Peter M. Zuttermann, won the award for best director.

BEST ACTRESS

Best actress of the festival was Grace Wells-Finley of Charlottetown's Children's Theatre for her role in Rumpelstiltskin.

The Magistrate, a farce by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, has a two-out-of-three chance at making it to Victoria.

Two winning entries from the Saskatchewan-Alberta-British Columbia zone will be chosen by adjudicator Peter Boretski of Winnipeg to appear at the finals.

In the Saskatchewan festival, Mr. Boretski picked Vickie Charnetaki and Howard Ballin of Saskatoon's Gateway Theatre's production of Tea-house of the August Moon for individual acting honors.

At the conclusion of the Eastern Quebec festival Sunday night, adjudicator Jeanne

Australians To Perform At Expo 67

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Melbourne Symphony Orchestra and the Australian Ballet Company will take part in a festival of performing arts at the Montreal world's fair next year, the Australian commissioner — general for the Montreal exhibition, Sir Valston Hancock, announced Monday.

Arrangements are being made for the orchestra and the ballet to appear elsewhere in North America during their visit, Hancock said.

In addition, a group of outstanding Australian artists is being formed to take part in dramatic, light entertainment and other performances.

Bishop, Wife Overdue On U.S. Trip

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Police in three states and British Columbia have been asked to be on the lookout for the Anglican Bishop of Caledonia and his wife, reported missing on a vacation trip.

Worried church officials said Monday Rt. Rev. E. G. Munn, 60, and Mrs. Munn, who have been on a California vacation, didn't turn up at a scheduled appearance at Terrace, 40 miles east of here Saturday night.

The couple was last heard from in a letter mailed from Hemet, Calif., 20 miles east of Los Angeles, March 12.

Mrs. Munn had said in a letter to her son, Harold, a University of Victoria student, that they would have to leave March 15 if they were to be at Terrace in time for a scheduled confirmation service.

When they did not arrive at Terrace, Rev. Peter Horsfield of the Terrace church informed Dean E. G. Flag here. Dean Flag told police and released information to the press Monday.

Church authorities who decline to be quoted expressed fear that the Munnas, driving a new car, either went off the road or were hijacked.

Police in Washington, Oregon and California have been asked to investigate. RCMP were attempting to determine whether the couple crossed the border.

LARGE DIOCESE

Bishop Munn, in his seventh year as Bishop of Caledonia, second largest Anglican diocese in Canada which covers the northern 60 per cent of B.C., recently returned from an Anglican Church meeting in Toronto.

They picked up a new car they had purchased in Prince Rupert and had shipped to Vancouver and drove south. They were driving a 1966 silver-grey Pontiac Strato Chief with B.C. licence 553-081.

WIDE SERVICE

Bishop Munn was born in England. He served in Quensel, Lytton, Vancouver, Fernie and was rector of St. Barnabas Church in Victoria.

From 1952 to 1955 he was examining chaplain for the Arch-bishop of B.C.

TECHNICAL BREAKDOWN

The RCAF spokesman said a "technical breakdown" caused the crash but he was unable to be more specific.

Another Canadian Starfighter, also from Zweibruecken, crashed in Bavaria March 4. The pilot was killed.

NINTH CRASH

The West German Air Force Starfighter crashed earlier in the day. For the Germans, it was the ninth crash this year of the American-designed plane.

A West German defence ministry spokesman said the German pilot, who bailed out, lost control of the plane while testing some equipment.

The pilot was luckier than three of his comrades who died in Starfighter mishaps this year.

The Starfighter is the problem child of the Luftwaffe. Thirty-five have been lost since Jan. 1, 1965.

In Ottawa, defence officials said the RCAF Starfighter was the 34th to crash since the RCAF acquired the plane in 1961. There have been 11 fatalities.

Suddenly I Lost My Memory!

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added pride, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 483, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do.

McMorran

Says Philip

Canadian Coffee Better

TORONTO (UPI) — The

French press came in for a knock and Canadian coffee was given a royal seal of approval when Prince Philip bantered with newsmen for 20 minutes Monday afternoon.

The prince broke off a heavy day of official functions on the last leg of his two-week tour to chat with newsmen.

Asked about a rumor in the French press that Queen Elizabeth was planning to step down from the throne because of ill health, Prince Philip said: "You can't believe everything you read in the papers... especially the French papers."

Was Prince Charles coming to Canada for a part of his education? "I haven't heard anything."

Did he like Canadian coffee? "It's more or less like coffee everywhere but it's more like coffee than what I have received lately."

Was he being paid for his money-raising activities. He said if International Variety Club decided to give him a cut, it would be turned over to other children's charities.

McMorran Called Mischievous, Irresponsible

'Bench Boycotts Prosecutor'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight of Vancouver's 10 magistrates said Monday chief prosecutor Stewart McMorran should not appear before them in the future.

The magistrates, not including senior Magistrate James Barman, issued a strongly-worded criticism of a recent report of the veteran prosecutor, using the words "mischievous" and "misleading and irresponsible."

But there was some question whether Mr. McMorran was barred from the courts.

Mr. McMorran said not and that he planned to appear when it was necessary. It is reported that in that case magistrates will not hear him.

Meanwhile, Attorney-General Bonner said in an interview he hopes the magistrates will reconsider.

Behind the dispute is a report Mr. McMorran sent Mr. Bonner last week, saying his office relayed traffic charges dismissed by magistrates for "flimsy reasons." One of these was the non-appearance in court of police witnesses.

The attorney-general Monday ordered Mr. McMorran to stop the practice, which was adverse to public regard for the administration of justice.

The magistrates issued a statement that was read in court by Magistrate Leslie Bewley. It was not signed by Magistrate Lorne Jackson, who is on vacation.

It said in part: "McMorran's misleading and irresponsible utterances reflect an obvious misunderstanding of the Magistrates' courts together with an arrogant and over-zealous attitude calculated to bring these courts into disrespect."

"The only proper and ethical forum for a prosecutor to criticize a magistrate's decision is in the appeal courts."

It said the magistrates' courts are a bulwark between law enforcement authorities and the public.

"If these courts are not held in respect to which they are entitled our system for the proper administration of justice breaks down."

"McMorran is an officer of these courts and as such is bound in duty and in law to maintain a courteous and respectful attitude towards the magistrates and to uphold the dignity of the magistrates' courts."

"The confidence of each of the magistrates here assembled in McMorran as an officer of these courts and as a public prosecutor is shaken and consequently it is felt that he should not appear before us in future."

Magistrate Barman would not comment on the statement. Mr. McMorran would only say he did not think the statement barred him from the courts.

Mr. McMorran joined the staff of the city prosecutor's office in 1946. He has been prosecutor for 12 years.

Garden Notes

Surprise Packet

By M. V. CHESNUT

In my last column, in Sunday's Colonist, I announced our first free seed offer of 1966—seeds of a big, colorful, eye-catching plant called Amaranthus, sure to attract a lot of attention in any garden where it is grown. I offered to send a packet containing approximately 100 Amaranthus seeds to any of my garden friends who would like to try their hand at growing this unusual plant. The deal is perfectly simple—just drop me a line and ask for your free seeds, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope to carry your free seeds back to you. If you don't want to be bothered writing a letter, use the coupon at the foot of this column instead.

As I mentioned Sunday, the seeds I have for you are a mixture of different kinds of Amaranthus; there are so many different kinds, all fascinating, that I couldn't make up my mind which to order, so I had the seed-growing firm in Denmark make up a special mixture containing a little of this and a little of that. With any luck at all, your free packet of seeds should produce at least four different sizes, shapes and colors of Amaranthus, and you may get even more kinds.

Probably the best-known member of the Amaranthus tribe is A. caudatus, commonly called Love-lies-bleeding or Kiss-me-over-the-garden-gate. It is a curious plant which may grow anywhere from 10 inches to 7 feet tall, bearing long, drooping, chenille-like tassels. Other types have crimson tassels, but a new variety called Green Tassel is attracting a lot of attention among flower arrangers.

Another Amaranthus, so different you'd never know it is a member of the same family, is the Fountain Plant, Amaranthus salicifolius. This one stands three feet tall, with long, narrow leaves in brilliant orange and crimson, drooping to give a "fountain of fire" effect.

Amaranthus "Molten Fire" makes a plant four feet tall with flaming red foliage—a plant that hits you in the eye from half a block away. Early Splendor makes great spreads of pendant foliage in brilliant scarlet on three-foot plants.

ART BUCHWALD Flashes Red Alert

Merrily We Go to Blazes

Last week the television networks played a dirty trick on the public. NBC and CBS both pre-empted their regular shows because of the Gemini 8 flight, which had gotten into trouble and had to be returned to earth in an emergency splashdown. All the networks received angry telephone calls from viewers who felt they were being cheated out of their regular evening entertainment.

The American Broadcasting Company was the only one who showed some consideration for its audience by putting on Batman, the most important program in its stable, despite the Gemini emergency.

But even ABC let the public down, by interrupting Batman with bulletins. This endangered the wrath of Batman fans all over the place.

It gives one great faith in the public, and shows the power of entertainment over news in TV programming.

States is meeting now with his National Security Council. In the meantime Polaris submarines have been put on station and all missiles have been ordered armed.

Over at CBS a caller is screaming into the phone, "I want to know if you're going to put on the Dick Van Dyke show or not. If you're not I want to go to bed. I haven't missed the Dick Van Dyke show since it's been on the air and you people better realize the public is sick and tired of being pushed around. Why don't you leave the news to the educational TV stations?"

"We have just had a late bulletin that the enemy planes have turned back. They are returning to their bases. Our planes have been called off." "Is this the CBS operator? We just tell you people there that the next time they pre-empt the Beverly Hillsbillies for an air raid I'm going to write directly to the sponsors. Now what do you have to say about that?"

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Man from Uncle Safe

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Robert Vaughn's agents have been waiting apprehensively for a reaction from his U.N.C.L.E. sponsors because of his anti-Viet Nam speeches. But that man from UNCLE is lucky. His TV backers apparently believe in free speech. As does Metro, which makes the successful series. Very often when an actor sticks his neck out, his head gets chopped off.

We (and she herself did, too) expected Ursula Andress to co-star with Jean Paul Belmondo in Tender Gutternipe (now there's a title for you). But the sexy role goes to Mylene Demongeot. Mylene, who also has a good figure, will have her low-necked dress held together with silver sequins on transparent plastic. What happened to the Andress-Belmondo flame?

John Lennon was saying in England that when his father, Fred, came to call at his country estate recently, he showed him the door. It seems the senior Lennon was not around in the lean days. The three married Beatles all live in the city of Weybridge, which is not too far from London where Beatle Paul lives.

While we're in London, where we hope soon to be, I must look into the tale that there are two James Bonds in Casino Royale—in addition to David Niven playing the elderly Sir James Bond, handsome Terence Cooper who told me a year and a half ago that he would be Bond in this picture. He seems to have been right. But no one knows for sure, because producer Charles Feldman isn't talking. And the film, as fast as it is taken, is locked in a vault. How's that for secrecy?

Lauren Bacall and her husband, Jason Roberts, Jr., will be apart for eight weeks. Which makes me wonder why he accepted the Any Wednesday movie in Hollywood. I'll tell you how he landed the role. Jack Warner wanted to see his performance in A Thousand Clowns and asked for a print to be sent to his home. The request was refused because "to appreciate it you must see it in a regular theatre with an audience." So he went to the Village Theatre in Westwood where it was showing. And telephoned Jason, who was in the dumps with the closing of his play. I'm told he took the movie because he can use the money. He has some ex-wives and alimony to pay.

Maria Montez would have wept to hear her daughter, Tina Marquand, complain, "I'm only 20, and they print that my marriage is over." They didn't exactly do that. Tina was saying on the set of Texas Across the River that she is sure everything will be okay. Monsieur Marquand has just left for London to see about directing a film. "The situation with films in Paris is very bad, while London is jumping," he said before leaving. It seems that the French people have finally discovered material blessings, like washing machines and ice boxes, and they are spending their money on comfort, not on the cinema.

Fate Is Character

SYDNEY HARRIS

If you change jobs frequently, or move your residence cross-country twice or more, your chances (if a man) of getting a heart attack are two or three times as great as men who are more stable in their jobs and residences.

A recently completed study of some 20,000 persons in North Dakota found that these two factors alone — jobs and residence — were related to coronary heart disease "independently of such other factors as diet, relative body weight, blood pressure, cigarette smoking and parental longevity."

The men who made two or more cross-country moves developed heart disease twice as often as those who were geographically stable; and the men who changed jobs at least four times since age 18 developed heart attacks three times as much as those who were occupationally stable.

Does this evidence "prove," then, that social and cultural factors are largely responsible for these heart conditions? As I remarked in a column a few weeks ago, that is the kind of loose and careless thinking we must beware of, when we talk about "cause" and "effect" in such matters. It would be too easy to say that the strain of changing jobs or homes brought on these coronary attacks.

What makes much more sense, to my mind, is the inference that a certain type of man — both physiologically and emotionally — tends to change jobs and residences more frequently; and the same drives that move him around also make him more subject to heart disease.

To take another example of fallacious "cause" and "effect," it is often said (and with much truth) that show business, or the entertainment industry, is a frightful occupation — because so many of the people who get involved in it become unhappy in their personal lives, dissolve their marriages, take to alcohol or addiction, and have a high suicide rate.

Rather, it seems to me, a certain type of person is initially attracted to show business — often, a neurotic, narcissistic, frustrated person with severe sexual problems. And the combination of these personalities with the admittedly chaotic conditions in show business results in the misery and lack of fulfillment so often found among these people.

"Fate is character," said the old Greek dramatists. Things do not happen to people as much as people happen to things; that is, the pre-disposition to a certain way of life is more important in shaping our destiny than the objective events that occur to us.

Barring freak accidents, each of us ends his life by way of the weakness with which he was born, be it of brain or blood or bone or bad mothering.

'True Rate' Of Interest NDP Goal

A bill which would force disclosure of hidden interest paid by installment buyers was one of five opposition bills given first reading in the legislature Monday.

Opposition Leader Robert Satchell introduced the bill which says the purchaser should be informed of the "true rate" of interest on the unpaid balance, plus all other amounts added to the purchase price. He also introduced a bill which would give the government the authority to "engage in and carry on the petroleum industry."

The NDP leader recommended last fall that the government take over the oil industry when there was a threat of a province-wide general strike because of an unsettled oil workers' dispute.

FLUORIDATION

A bill which would assist the passage of fluoridation referendums was brought in by Dr. Pat McGeer (L., Vancouver-Point Grey).

Under this amendment to the Municipal Act, only half of the electors who vote could bring in fluoridation. The act now requires 60 per cent support for passage.

FARM MACHINERY

David Shupich (NDP, Nanaimo-The Islands) introduced a bill which he believes will offer protection for the purchasers of farm machinery.

This bill would require manufacturers to provide at least two outlets in the province for the sale of spare parts for their implements up to 10 years old.

THIRD YEAR

Leo Nimelok (NDP, Cranbrook) brought in, for about the third successive year, a bill which would guarantee workers three weeks' paid vacation after five years' continuous employment with any single firm.

$1,500 Bid Made For $10

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—John Murray, a bank accountant in nearby Windsor, has found a $10 bill for which he has been offered $1,500.

The banknote lacks the signatures of Louis Rasmussen, governor of the Bank of Canada, and his deputy, J. R. Beattie.

Mr. Murray said he has no idea what the note is really worth but he has been offered $1,500 and intends to take the bill to coin auctions to see what he can get for it.

Shortage Blamed On Pay

British Columbia's farm labor shortage is caused by low wages and inadequate job security and accident protection, the legislature's select standing committee on agriculture was told Monday.

The B.C. Federation of Labor submitted a brief on the problem, on the basis that while farm laborers are not protected by the federation, "We have always demanded that all individuals in our society are entitled to certain basic rights to ensure them a decent standard of living."

Neither importation of labor nor arrangements such as the one from outside the province federal-provincial agricultural manpower agreement could solve the farm labor shortage, federation delegates told the committee.

Canada To Host Counter Missiles?

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might provide the United States with some of the necessary real estate if the latter decides to build a counter-missile system, informed sources said Monday.

Any Canadian sites for such a system to shoot down approaching ballistic missiles would likely be in the area of the present Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., the source said.

Such siting would provide some protection for Toronto and Montreal.

NOT CERTAIN YET

Authorities emphasized that it is still far from certain that the U.S. will try to erect a counter-missile system, even a rudimentary one. And even if it did, it was only a possibility that Canada would participate by providing a couple of sites.

Officials said the government doesn't want to become involved financially in such a system if it can help it. An elementary network would cost between $8,000,000 and $10,500,000,000 and a more advanced one some $30,000,000,000.

PREPARE DEFENCES

Press reports from Moscow say large, mysterious structures in the countryside near Moscow and Leningrad indicate that Russia is installing a defence system against intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Previously, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara indicated that he is more worried about a Chinese Communist long-range missile force than about Russia's.

WOULD KILL MANY

Mr. McNamara also said effectiveness of a major counter-missile system would be uncertain and that even with one 50,000,000 Americans would be killed in any surprise Soviet nuclear attack.

Development of components for a "light" counter-missile system designed to cope with any attack from China would cost $100 million, he said.

Across the length and breadth of the land, there will march from the nation's high schools in late May a graduating class of monstrous size.

The class will be triple in size of the previous record achieved last year. It will total 2,700,000 compared with 900,000.

FINDING WORK

The new graduates will face unparalleled competition for college admission and for attractive jobs.

Anticipating the flood of graduates, the Kremlin has drafted a crash program designed to provide work for all job-seekers. However, the Kremlin has approved only a modest expansion in college admissions next fall, much below the proportions of the rise in eligible applicants.

The job program could run counter to the philosophy of the economic "reform" plan adopted last September, under which Soviet industry is to gear performance to achieve maximum "profit" per ruble of QUOTAS.

Orders will go out to state farms and factories to hire teenagers. Every industry will be ordered to reserve vacancies for them and be assigned a teenage hiring quota.

Next year, the Soviet high school graduating class will be smaller, probably only twice the size of the 1965 class.

A major reason for this year's big bulge is that the Soviet Union is cutting one year from its primary-secondary school program, switching from an 11-grade to a 10-grade system. Therefore, 1966 graduates will consist of the final 11th grade class and the initial class of 10th grade graduates.

EXAMINATIONS

Competitive examinations given during the summer determine which students are permitted to enter universities and institutes (special colleges) to continue their education as full-time students. Tuition is free, and most university students receive stipends toward living expenses during five to five-and-a-half years of study.

There will be a precipitous drop in the percentage of applicants admitted to higher education.

Truscott Case Doubts

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The awful doubts about Steven Truscott's guilt may tilt the scales against the slim-edge retentionists in Wednesday's historic death penalty debate. "This could happen," New Democrat leader T. C.

Douglas said Monday night, as MPs panicked over the possibility that Truscott, then 14, was not the slayer of 12-year-old Lynne Harper.

The Truscott case, Mr. Douglas said, attracts attention to archaic laws that allow a boy of 14 to be condemned to hang.

If a judicial inquiry is held and he is cleared, "we can give Truscott back some years of life," he said. "If we had hanged him, we would have deprived him of everything."

The possibility of error is one of the major arguments against retention of the death penalty.

Therefore, the Truscott case weighs heavily over MPs as they prepare for the debate. Before the Commons, it was disclosed Monday night, will be a resolution authored by four MPs: James Byrne, Liberal; Terry Nugent, Tory; Reid Scott, New Democrat; and Robert Stanbury, Liberal.

Their resolution would abolish the death penalty for all offenses but attempts are certain to be made to modify it and retain the penalty for some kinds of murder. It reads as follows:

"Resolved that it is expedient to introduce a measure to amend the Criminal Code for the purposes of:

"Abolishing the death penalty in respect of all offenses under the Act.

"Substituting a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment in those cases where the death penalty is now mandatory.

"Providing that no person upon whom the mandatory sentence of life imprisonment is imposed shall be released from imprisonment without

Smut Dispensers Curbed in U.S.

By ROBERT J. DONOVAN

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The Supreme Court's obscenity rulings Monday were bad news for dispensers of pornography. At last there has been a crack-down, carefully limited though it may be. It is no longer true that anything goes.

While time will be needed to assess the effect of the decisions, they may at least slow the torrent of smutty books, pseudo nudist magazines and other sexy literature sold with a deliberate and calculated salacious appeal. (See Page 5.)

Taking a quick glance at the majority of opinions, some lawyers felt that they threatened the legality of certain paperback books with sexually lurid covers. The lawyers also speculated as to whether the court's rulings might not lead to restrictions on salacious movie advertising, even though this was not at issue in any of the cases before the court today.

There was also speculation of a broader character. In the last 10 or 15 years the pendulum has swung very far in the direction of taking the legal wraps off the dissemination of pornographic literature of one kind and another. Do the court's rulings indicate that the pendulum is beginning to swing the other way?

It is too early to say for sure because the court left open a number of questions that may take another series of decisions to settle. The whole question of suppression of pornography and maintenance of freedom of speech is an extremely broad one.

Der Alte Finds Soviets 'Doves'

BONN (UPI) — Former chancellor Konrad Adenauer laid down his political mantle at the age of 90 Monday. He started his successors by saying Russia now seeks peace and Germany should join France in an independent foreign policy.

"Soviet mediation of the armed conflict between India and Pakistan," Adenauer declared. "Is evidence to me that the Soviet government has joined the ranks of those who wish peace."

LEADERS FROZEN

Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder and Defence Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassell sat as if frozen while "Der Alte" delivered his pronouncement.

Only Thursday, Schröder told parliament the Bonn government disagrees with French President de Gaulle's opinion that the Soviet threat to Central Europe has diminished.

90 IN JANUARY

Adenauer turned 90 in January and announced he would not seek re-election when his current two-year term as Christian Democratic Party chairman expired this month.

He had turned the chancellorship over to Erhard, his former economics minister, in October, 1963, but insisted on keeping the chairmanship through the 1965 parliamentary election. His valetictory Monday was the same mixture of wit, persona, anecdotes, and school-room truisms which made him the most popular and successful leader a free Germany has ever had.

Sukarno Bid Is Rejected

SINGAPORE (AP) — The new military regime in Indonesia has rejected President Sukarno's request to return to his birthplace in eastern Java, informed sources said Monday.

Possibly he wanted to retire from politics or make contact with pro-Communist remnants in an effort to whip up resistance against the new regime.

Non-Confidence Motions

Socred 'Save' Pledged Grits

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government today will easily defeat opposition non-confidence motions based on its alleged failure to halt soaring prices and curb inflation.

Socred financial critic Bud Olson indicated Monday his party will support the government rather than force another election.

Conservatives and New Democrats raised their motion as Finance Minister Sharp opened a debate to allow the parliament to supply money to the government.

SERIOUS EFFECT

The Conservative motion cited the cost of living index which reached an all time high of 142.1 points in February. It added:

"This house regrets that the government has failed to act effectively to hold down living costs and halt inflation both of which are having a serious effect on persons receiving social security, war pensions, old age pensioners, retired civil servants, persons on fixed incomes and all low income groups."

REVIEW BOARD

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas added a clause regretting the government's failure to establish a price review board.

SPENDING TOO MUCH

Mr. Diefenbaker lambasted the government for spending too much and paying no attention to inflation and the rising cost of living.

"Everywhere attention is called to the danger of our moving into an inflationary period which cannot be controlled and which might easily backfire into a depression."

HOUSEWIVES HIT

"The housewife, the wage-earner, the pensioner, the old age pensioner, the war pensioner, the retired civil servant and all who live on fixed incomes are today facing the tremendous cost of living. It will go still higher in all parts of Canada as one province after another imposes its own sales tax," he said.

"Everywhere across the nation there has been a cascade of increases in food prices—yet the federal government has not declared war against inflation," the Tory leader said.

FOOD PRICES UP

Then he listed about two dozen food items which have risen in price in the past year. He used statistics to demonstrate that housing, clothing, transportation and health care are also significantly higher than last year.

"All this then adds up to the fact that Canadians today are paying the highest prices in history in peace time," he said. Finance Minister Sharp retorted by accusing the Conservatives of "the most disastrous handling of any country's finances that has been seen in the modern world."

Students Call Ky 'Traitor'

SAIGON (UPI) — American Marines killed 28 Communist Viet Cong Monday in action near the South Viet Nam border and in a second big battle further south. For the first time in the current political unrest, students directly attacked Premier Nguyen Cao Ky by name early Tuesday, branding him a traitor to the nation.

The students of one of Saigon's largest high schools staged an angry, anti-government walkout and were barred from returning to their classrooms by nervous school officials who feared they could not control them.

Masterful Timing

Wilson's Caginess Hurts Tory Election Hopes

By EDWIN BOTH

BIRMINGHAM (Special) — In the huge market hall of Birmingham packed by 12,000 people — with thousands unable to get in — Prime Minister Harold Wilson stands beneath television floodlights and shouts to the chanting, howling, screaming young Conservatives: "I think the Young Tories should be congratulated for their well-drilled, organized chanting. We have seen nothing like it since the Nuremberg Nazi rallies!"

These howling young Tories

are too young to remember the German Nazis. They don't know how much their placato chants "Wilson Out — Wilson Out — Wilson Out!" sound like the Nazi rally noises. To increase the bedlam, they blow shrill whistles, ring bells and swing the large wooden rattles used by supporters at English football games.

LOUD INTERRUPTIONS

Loud interruptions with ironic questions and comments are allowed at British election meetings and are a beloved old tradition known as heckling.

Harold Wilson revels in it. But what we see here in the Birmingham Rag Market is something very different: an organized attack by hundreds of Young Tories — most of them students from Birmingham and Oxford universities — to prevent Wilson speaking. They have come to break up the meeting.

BUT THE MORE, THEY HOWL

But the more, they howl, scream, whistle, rattle and chant, the greater grows the joy of Wilson and his Labor party's campaign managers. This can only help Wilson and harm the Tories.

THE FLOODING RAG MARKET

While the floodlit Rag Market is seething pandemonium, the correspondent of the independent Conservative and fiercely anti-Labor London Daily Express telephones his report for 4,000,000 front pages, in which he describes the young Conservatives as "chanting in a kind of hypnotic frenzy."

Most Tritons don't like hypnotic frenzy in their politics. In October, 1964, the Conservative Prime Minister Sir

Alec Douglas-Home was howled down by Labor supporters in this same Rag Market hall. Now the Tories want to avenge him.

THEY ARE MAKING A TREMENDOUS MISTAKE

As the 14th Earl of Home, Sir Alec had never previously taken part in a tough election campaign. In the Birmingham Rag Market, he was reduced to impotent stuttering fury — which looked terrible in close-up on television. But James Harold Wilson is Plowing match chairman George Brinkwhite has received from (Bill) details of the Canadian Plowing Contest, to be held April 13 and 14.

The first day will feature the B.C. Provincial Championships, the top two entries in the national competition next day.

Plowmen from Washington will also have a class. The young tractor plowing will be a feature of the first day.

NANAIMO — Three volumes outlining the history of B.C. were presented to the city of Nanaimo, Saturday afternoon.

The histories once belonged to Reginald Hickman, and he bequeathed them to the city in memory of his father, John Hickman, a pioneer Nanaimo resident.

John Hickman arrived in Nanaimo in 1888 and he was an engineer famous for his coal-loading record.

He loaded 5,800 tons of coal on to the collier Titania on three occasions.

This normally took 10 men three full days.

NORTH COWICHAN — Two ratepayers groups have spoken out on the uncertain fate of recreation in this municipality.

Longer
Track Delayed

NANAIMO — Extending the Caledonia track to the full quarter-mile distance has been shelved for the time being, by the Civic Properties and Recreation Commission.

City engineer Art Leonard estimated the cost of the project would be $13,669, to lengthen the track by the required 41 feet.

The track is at Caledonia Park on Caledonia Avenue in Nanaimo.

At Monday night's meeting, the commission decided money was not available at the present time.

Although commission chairman Bill McGregor said "I don't think we should forget about this."

The Kinsmen's swimming pool in Bowen Park will open June 6 this year, and will close Labor Day.

Starting this Friday, teen dances will be held in the Gyro Centre, commission manager Harry Wipperfurth announced.

In other commission business, organizations will be given permission to build floats for the Empire Day parade in the centennial building at Exhibition Park, providing the activity can be "controlled."

Thief
Raids
Aviaries

PORT ALBERNI — Theft of valuable canaries and budgies has shocked two Alberni Valley owners.

"We're broken-hearted," said Joyce Andrew, 607 Ninth Avenue North, Port Alberni.

Thieves cut wire and stole 19 canaries from their new outdoor aviary over the weekend.

Ron and Joyce Andrew, with their 15-year-old son and two daughters, made a family hobby of raising the cheerful little birds. All five were unhappy about the theft which brings their total loss over the past five weeks to 25 birds.

Six were lost to wire-cutting thieves in February at that time, the rest of the birds stayed in the yard and were coaxed back in the shelter.

Mr. and Mrs. Werner Konezka, 500 Burke Street, lost 18 canaries and two budgies to thieves on Valentine's Day.

In both cases, the bird fancier had a visit from a plausible stranger a day or two before the theft, who asked to see the birds.

At the Konezka home, the man said he was a stranger and asked to use the phone. After phoning, he asked about the birds.

"He told me he had a budgie and canaries, and asked to see ours," Mrs. Konezka said. "I showed them to him in the aviary. He left and a few days later, our birds disappeared."

At the Andrew home, a stranger knocked on the door Thursday, and said he had heard the birds as he passed. He asked to see them.

He did not return. Friday night the birds disappeared from the newly-completed aviary, built after the first theft, at the Andrews.

The Konezka birds are numbered with the markings VI and 64, progressively from 91 to 105. The Andrew birds are numbered VI and 65 with numbers between 1175 to 1213.

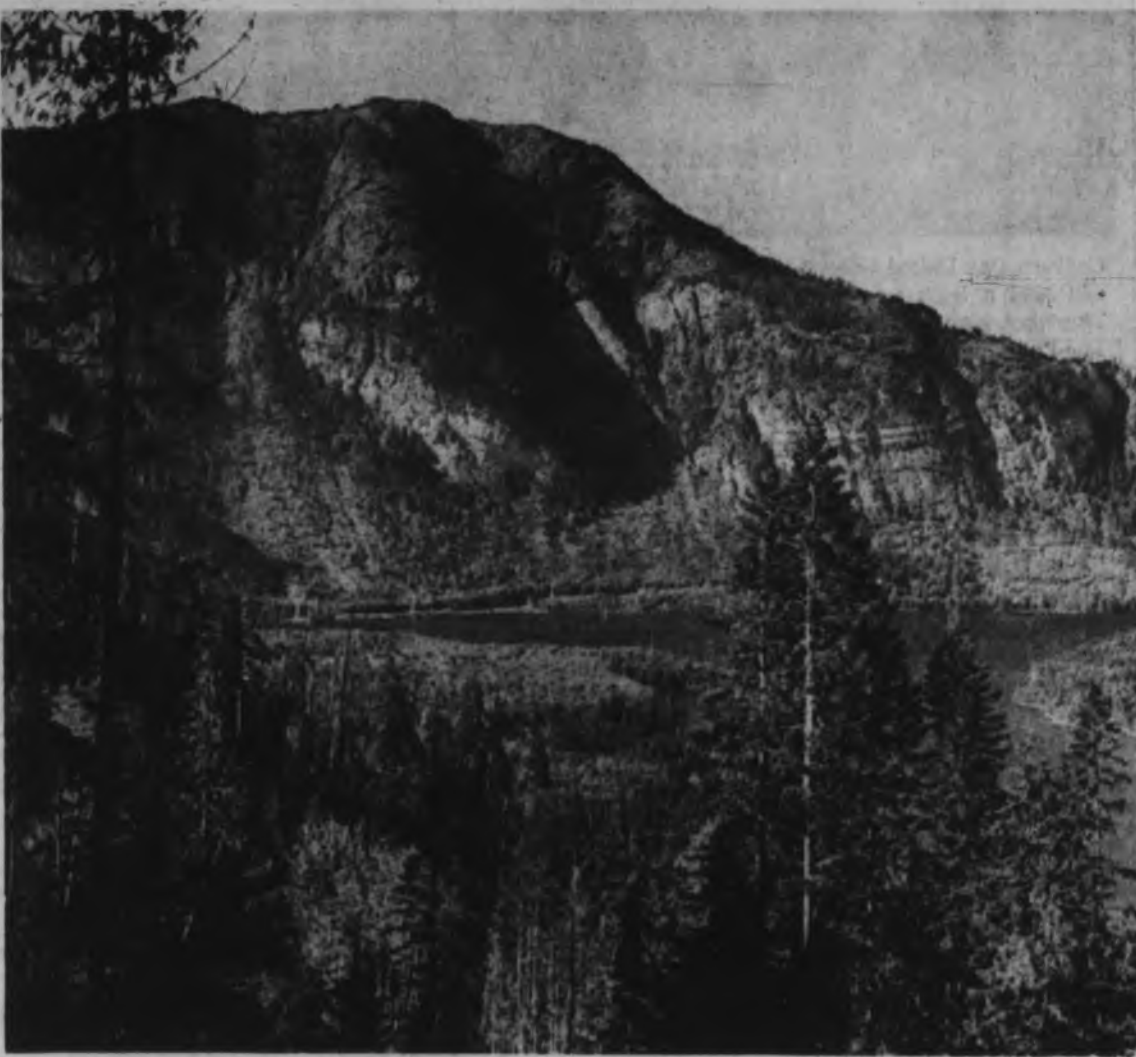

Six Run for Duncan Seats
As Nominations Close

DUNCAN — Nominations for the forthcoming aldermanic election closed Monday with six candidates running for two seats.

They are: Homer Alex, businessman, for one year term;

Harold Almann, real estate agent, for one year term;
William Burak, building contractor, for two year term;
Thomas Kilpatrick, security agent, for two year term;
Lyle Reid, pulp mill employee, for two year term.

The election will take place April 2.

Horne Lake, on possible route from Alberni to east coast

Alberni Man Issues
Horne Lake Challenge

By MARY TAYLOR

Courtenay
Declines

COURTENAY — City council has received and filed George McKnight's road challenge.

Ald. Harry Harris said "this person is just confusing the issue."

Ald. Geoff Browning commented "I think we should throw our weight behind the Cumberland-Alberni route."

Mayor George Hobson said the matter has been under advisement for many years by the Island chambers of commerce, and he felt council should support the Cumberland-Alberni route.

During them to tell their own communities "the facts" on comparison of the Horne Lake Road and the Cumberland Route, which the chambers advocate, Mr. McKnight said: "Press reports indicate the chambers are unalterably opposed to the Horne Lake Road."

"But phone calls and letters I have been getting from their own area indicate a substantial number of their own residents do not agree."

He said "I ask them to publicly state that the Cumberland route would not substantially reduce the distance from the Alberni to Courtenay, while the Horne Lake road would reduce it by more than 20 miles."

"I ask them to state that the Horne Lake road involves less than 12 miles of new construction, while the Cumberland Road involves 32 miles."

Mr. McKnight claimed chances of getting a hard surface road to Cumberland are very slim, even if a road is built.

"But the shorter Horne Lake route is much more likely to get a hard surface."

He recently announced he would hike over the Horne Lake route. He said "possibly 100 persons plan to make the hike on Easter Monday."

Trustee Hits Lawbreakers — School Trustee Jack Bailey Monday complained that sometimes when he stops behind a stationary school bus with warning lights flashing, "other motorists just laugh at me and drive on without stopping."

He said he saw a teacher break this law recently.

FLOODING — He ended his talk with pictures of the valleys that will be flooded when the Columbia River dams are completed.

So far Mr. Pedersen and the B.C. wildlife federation have fought an unsuccessful battle to have the government cut the timber before the areas are inundated.

He showed slides of other lakes in the province where the water level had been raised and logging has not taken place first.

Among the more picturesque names are Dogwood Drive and Hummingbird Lane.

The main arterial roads were also named in a manner that would enable residents and visitors to find their way in and around the new town.

Nimkish Way will bypass the town in the direction of the North Island via Nimkish Valley.

Muchalat Way leads through the town in the direction of the new pulp mill, now under construction, at the head of Muchalat Inlet.

Cowichan Board Signs Contract

DUNCAN — Members of Cowichan school board Monday approved a new contract for 1966 with Local 1-80 IWA, which represents about 55 school district employees.

The contract brings wage increases ranging from 6.6 per cent for part-time bus drivers to 15.9 per cent for maintenance men, gardeners and grounds-men.

Previous monthly incomes ranged from $356 for full time janitors to $446 for bus driver mechanics.

Acting chairman Dr. Neil Dornier said "We were slightly behind other school districts with the same type of employees and I go along wholeheartedly."

Dr. Dornier also noted future negotiations for teachers' salaries "which has become too complex" will probably be handled through the provincial trustees' organization.

He said this new system would only be for teachers' salaries but the trend indicates other negotiations will follow.

In other board action: "Our school (Cowichan high school) is one of the tidiest in the area and Principal Dick Lendrum is very concerned and will do everything in his power," Superintendent Art Jones told the school board, which received a letter from the City of Duncan about high school students throwing lunch papers away during the noon hour.

The city advised the board it will provide some waste containers.

Fund on Wheels — Sound of the ambulance siren fills Chemainus citizens with some pride these days; for in a few weeks the community raised $13,000 to buy the new emergency vehicle. North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton cuts ribbon, officially putting ambulance into use. New emergency vehicle gets a call. —(Agnes Flett)

Caravan — Centennial Caravan will be in Lake Cowichan today, at Mason's Store, Renfrew Road.

Historic Timber Removed — Extensive log jams clogged the lakes and near the shores dead trees still standing presented hazards to the water recreationist.

At the start of the meeting the executive for 1966 was installed.

Mrs. Betty St. Jean is president; Mrs. Freda Spencer, recording secretary; Mrs. Olive Taylor, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Anne Brownley, archivist; Mrs. Ruth Allan, treasurer; Mrs. Ruby Bell, second vice-president, and Mrs. Margaret Strongtharm, first vice-president.

Road Map Planned — "Less than one per cent of land in B.C. is park land, yet they want to establish mines and logging operations in it," he complained.

Mr. Pedersen has long led the fight to keep industry out of Strathcona Park.

MINING — He brought with him colored slides of the park, showing its beauty in contrast with the ugly scars left by both mining and logging ventures.

Western Mines Ltd. wants the only piece of flat land in the park, he maintained, and "if it is destroyed by a town now, it cannot be used as a picnic or tenting site."

"I hope the spar tree and the logging truck doesn't become the symbol of B.C. Instead, I hope it will be our beautiful parks."

SHEEP — From Strathcona Park he turned to the East Kootenays where the area is to lose 95 per cent of its Big Horn Sheep herds.

Mr. Pedersen laid the blame at the doorstep of marginal farmers allowing the land to be over-browsed, leaving no food on the lower levels for the sheep.

He illustrated his argument with pictures of barren hills and young willows gnawed to the stump by ravenous wild animals.

FLOODING — He ended his talk with pictures of the valleys that will be flooded when the Columbia River dams are completed.

So far Mr. Pedersen and the B.C. wildlife federation have fought an unsuccessful battle to have the government cut the timber before the areas are inundated.

He showed slides of other lakes in the province where the water level had been raised and logging has not taken place first.

Ferry Trip Impresses Down Under Visitors

When Mr. and Mrs. John Tisdale were in New Zealand, for meetings of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association in December, they met two charming New Zealand girls, Miss Diana Dickie and Miss Prue Polson mentioned plans for a trip to North America, so the Tisdales, naturally, asked them to visit if they came anywhere near Victoria.

The girls have done just that. They arrived in Vancouver on the Oriska on Sunday, and have come to spend a few days in Victoria before continuing their four-month tour of Canada and the United States.

Both Miss Polson and Miss Dickie live on sheep ranches near Wanganui, which is about 130 miles northwest of Wellington.

Friends of the daughter of Prime Minister Holyoake of New Zealand, they were guests when parliamentarians from the Commonwealth toured Brudenell, a leading sheep ranch of the district. It was then that the invitation to visit Victoria was offered and accepted.

Though they haven't had time to see much of British Columbia yet, the travellers were enthusiastic about the beautiful ferry trip from Vancouver, during which they spent most of the time on the bridge as guests of the Captain.

After their three-day visit here, they will continue their tour.

Mrs. R. J. Bower . . .

South Africa — Whipping Boy of UN

"If a man does away with his traditional way of living and throws away his good customs, he had better first make certain that he has something of value to replace them."

That old Bantu proverb was quoted by Mrs. R. J. Bower last night as she addressed the annual meeting of the Municipal Chapter IODE on the current situation in the Republic of South Africa.

In presenting a broad picture of the dilemma faced by this great continent, Mrs. Bower pointed out that apart from external pressures, in a world which condemns her policies of apartheid, South Africa faces the formidable task of ruling 11 national groups.

These 11 national groups are made up of 3,000,000 whites, 1,000,000 Cape Coloureds, 600,000 East Indians and eight African ethnic groups which total more than 12,000,000.

"In the past few weeks Africa has again been making headlines with violence and bloodshed," she said. "Indeed from the Sahara to the Cape of Good Hope, the only oasis of peace seems to be that much maligned favorite whipping boy of the United Nations—the Republic of South Africa."

"As you know, South Africa is dedicated to preserving white rule. This goal was set many years ago when it was realized that if the democratic principle of one man, one vote was instituted, the white man would no longer be able to retain his position of political supremacy. The result is that today only the white man in South Africa is entitled to vote, although he is outnumbered by other races four to one."

In tracing the history of the republic, Mrs. Bower gave a graphic picture of a few of the problems issuing from its racial groups. Pointing into Africa were the British, the French, the Dutch, the Germans and the East Indians. Then there are the Cape Coloureds, who are mixed-blood descendants of the Hottentots and other peoples who mingled with the first white settlers. Added to this are the Cape Malays, whose ancestors came from Southeast Asia as slaves.

Mrs. Bower went on to speak of the planned Bantu states, of which have been planned and created by the Verwoerd government.

"The one which is in the most advanced state of development as an African-governed State, is the Transvaal," she said. "It is the home of 3,000,000 Xhosa."

"Politically the Bantu are developing on the foundations of their traditional tribal forms of government and provision has been made for tribal authorities, regional authorities and territorial authorities which come under central legislative assembly. The South African government retains authority over such items as defence, foreign affairs, customs, currency, broadcasting and telephones.

"This, then, is the South African answer to 'winds of change.' They firmly believe that Britain, France and Belgium handed over their colonies to irresponsible Africans far too quickly and point as proof of their belief, to the bloody history of the Congo since it was granted independence. They are determined to hand over the reins of government only when they are convinced the Bantu is ready to accept them."

Mrs. Bower ended by saying that the Republic of South Africa had done much toward raising the living standards of all the people of South Africa, and perhaps the mistakes and insults to human dignity had been given more emphasis than the good that had been done.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. R. R. Jeffels.

At the dinner meeting, which was held in the Ingraham Hotel, it was announced that Miss Christine MacNab was elected to head Municipal Chapter for the ensuing year, succeeding retiring regent Mrs. Elsie Lowthian.

Guests introduced at the meeting included provincial president Mrs. R. R. Shortreed of Vancouver, and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett.

In sessions which began early in the afternoon it was stated that total receipts of the chapter had been $9,299 with an equal amount of disbursements. Financial reports of the 10 primary chapters had shown receipts of $13,855. Totals showed a sum of $7,970 spent in the various branches of the work of the order and on specific funds.

COLFAX REBEKAH
Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1 will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in the IOOF Hall, 1323 Douglas Street.

Now Every Woman is entitled to look YOUNGER!

A new startling discovery has been made by a small group of skin physiologists. They found a way to make the skin of face and throat actually drink water, to quickly gain an appearance of fresh, smooth youthfulness it hasn't had for years. Facial lines, particularly around the eyes, and throat creases are said to more or less "get lost" as this water gets beneath the skin's surface to push them out of sight.

By special arrangement with the discoverers of this remarkable technique, a manipulation has been formulated which makes home application easy, pleasant and effective. The name of this preparation is 2nd Debut. This amazing discovery fresh from an American triumph, now comes to you—if you want to make heads turn your way once more and again enjoy the rapid skin-tension loosening from you is that first Spring!

Your face will look younger, you will require a fresher smoothness, which restores the skin's all-important impact of the beauty your facial features have always had. Get a bottle today. The 4 oz. bottle is $3.75, limited trial only $1.25.

HOW 2nd Debut TAKES YEARS OFF YOUR LOOKS

The active ingredient that enables 2nd Debut to make facial skin younger has been named CEF800. It penetrates the outer layer of skin and carries millions of tiny droplets of pure water that the skin has lost during its natural aging process. This water finds its way under the lines and wrinkles, and as it accumulates there, pushes those unwanted indentations upward. Progressively the face and neck fill out and look smoother and younger again. The result is startling.

This ingredient (CEF800) is compounded into smooth-flowing and delightful-to-use 2nd Debut. Use nightly (and daily under make-up) so that during 24 hours of the day it is carrying water into your skin bringing it new life, new youth and new beauty.

FOR THE YOUNGER WOMAN TOO!
The younger woman who does not need the full help of 2nd Debut will find it unique in quickly overcoming the problem of dry skin.

Russia's Graduates

Job Crisis Kills Hope For Youth

By VINCENT J. BURKE

MOSCOW (Special) — For an extraordinarily large number of Soviet youth this spring brings anxiety. Many are doomed to taste bitter disappointment this summer.

Across the length and breadth of the land, there will march from the nation's high schools in late May a graduating class of monstrous size.

The class will be triple in size of the previous record achieved last year. It will total 2,700,000 compared with 900,000.

FINDING WORK

The new graduates will face unparalleled competition for college admission and for attractive jobs.

Anticipating the flood of graduates, the Kremlin has drafted a crash program designed to provide work for all job-seekers.

However, the Kremlin has approved only a modest expansion in college admissions next fall, much below the proportions of the rise in eligible applicants.

The job program could run counter to the philosophy of the economic "reform" plan adopted last September, under which Soviet industry is to gear performance to achieve maximum "profit" per ruble of invested capital.

QUOTAS

Orders will go out to state farms and factories to hire teenagers. Every industry will be ordered to reserve vacancies for them and be assigned a teenage hiring quota.

Next year, the Soviet high school graduating class will be smaller, probably only twice the size of the 1965 class.

A major reason for this year's big bulge is that the Soviet Union is cutting one year from its primary-secondary school program, switching from an 11-grade to a 10-grade system.

Therefore, 1966 graduates will consist of the final 11th grade class and the initial class of 10th grade graduates.

Competitive examinations given during the summer determine which students are permitted to enter universities and institutes (special colleges) to continue their education as full-time students. Tuition is free, and most university students receive stipends toward living expenses during five to five-and-a-half years of study.

There will be a precipitous drop in the percentage of applicants admitted to higher education.

Previously, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara indicated that he is more worried about a Chinese Communist long-range missile force than about Russia's.

Mr. McNamara also said effectiveness of a major counter-missile system would be uncertain and that even with one 50,000,000 American would be killed in any surprise Soviet nuclear attack.

Development of components for a "light" counter-missile system designed to cope with any attack from China would be pressed vigorously, however.

Truscott Case Doubts

Soul-Searching MPs May Ban Noose

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The awful doubts about Steven Truscott's guilt may tilt the scales

against the slim-edge retentionists in Wednesday's historic death penalty debate. "This could happen," New Democrat leader T. C.

Douglas said Monday night, as MPs panicked over the possibility that Truscott, then 14, was not the slayer of 12-year-old Lynne Harper.

The Truscott case, Mr. Douglas said, attracts attention to archaic laws that allow a boy of 14 to be condemned to hang.

If a judicial inquiry is held and he is cleared, "we can give Truscott back some years of life," he said.

"If we had hanged him, we would have deprived him of everything."

The possibility of error is one of the major arguments against retention of the death penalty.

Therefore, the Truscott case

weighs heavily over MPs as they prepare for the debate. Before the Commons, it was disclosed Monday night, will be a resolution authored by four MPs: James Byrne, Liberal; Terry Nugent, Tory; Reid Scott, New Democrat; and Robert Stanbury, Liberal.

Their resolution would abolish the death penalty for all offenses but attempts are certain to be made to modify it and retain the penalty for some kinds of murder.

It reads as follows: "Resolved that it is expedient to introduce a measure to amend the Criminal Code for the purposes of: "Abolishing the death penalty in respect of all offenses under the Act."

"Substituting a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment in those cases where the death penalty is now mandatory."

"Providing that no person upon whom the mandatory sentence of life imprisonment is imposed shall be released from imprisonment without

Canada To Host Counter Missiles?

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might provide the United States with some of the necessary real estate if the latter decides to build a counter-missile system, informed sources said Monday.

Any Canadian sites for such a system to shoot down approaching ballistic missiles would likely be in the area of the present Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., the source said.

Such siting would provide some protection for Toronto and Montreal.

NOT CERTAIN YET

Authorities emphasized that it is still far from certain that the U.S. will try to erect a counter-missile system, even a rudimentary one. And even if it did, it was only a possibility that Canada would participate by providing a couple of sites.

Officials said the government doesn't want to become involved financially in such a system if it can help it. An elementary network would cost between $8,000,000,000 and $10,500,000,000 and a more advanced one some $30,000,000,000.

PREPARE DEFENCES

Press reports from Moscow say large, mysterious structures in the countryside near Moscow and Leningrad indicate that Russia is installing a defence system against intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Previously, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara indicated that he is more worried about a Chinese Communist long-range missile force than about Russia's.

Mr. McNamara also said effectiveness of a major counter-missile system would be uncertain and that even with one 50,000,000 American would be killed in any surprise Soviet nuclear attack.

Development of components for a "light" counter-missile system designed to cope with any attack from China would be pressed vigorously, however.

Masterful Timing

By EDWIN ROTH

BIRMINGHAM (Special) — In the huge market hall of Birmingham packed by 12,000 people — with thousands unable to get in — Prime Minister Harold Wilson stands beneath television floodlights and shouts to the chanting, howling, screaming young Conservatives: "I think the Young Tories should be congratulated for their well-drilled, organized chanting. We have seen nothing like it since the Nuremberg Nazi rallies!"

These howling young Tories

are too young to remember the German Nazis. They don't know how much their staccato chants "Wilson Out — Wilson Out — Wilson Out" sound like the Nazi rally noises. To increase the bedlam, they blow shrill whistles, ring bells and swing the large wooden rattles used by supporters at English football games.

Loud interruptions with ironic questions and comments are allowed at British election meetings and are a beloved old tradition known as heckling.

Harold Wilson revels in it. But what we see here in the Birmingham Rag Market is something very different: an organized attempt by hundreds of them students from Birmingham and Oxford universities — to prevent Wilson speaking. They have come to break up the meeting.

But the more they howl, scream, whistle, rattle and chant, the greater grows the joy of Wilson and his Labor party's campaign managers. This can only help Wilson and harm the Tories.

While the floodlit Rag Market is seething pandemonium, the correspondent of the Independent Conservative and fiercely anti-Labor London Daily Express telephones his report for 4,000,000 front pages, in which he describes the young Conservatives as "chanting in a kind of hypnotic frenzy."

Most Britons don't like hypnotic frenzy in their politics. In October, 1964, the Conservative Prime Minister Sir

Alec Douglas-Home was howled down by Labor supporters in this same Rag Market hall. Now the Tories want to avenge him.

They are making a tremendous mistake. As the 14th Earl of Home, Sir Alec had never previously taken part in a tough election campaign. In the Birmingham Rag Market, he was reduced to impotent stammering fury — which looked terrible in close-up on television.

But James Harold Wilson is

Smut Dispensers Curbed in U.S.

By ROBERT J. DONOVAN

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The Supreme Court's obscenity rulings Monday were bad news for dispensers of pornography. At last there has been a crack-down, carefully limited though it may be. It is no longer true that anything goes.

While time will be needed to assess the effect of the decisions, they may at least slow the torrent of smutty books, pseudo nudist magazines and other sexy literature sold with a deliberate and calculated salacious appeal. (See Page 5.)

Taking a quick glance at the majority of opinions, some lawyers felt that they threatened the legality of certain paperback books with sexually lurid covers. The lawyers also speculated as to whether the court's rulings might lead to restrictions on salacious movie advertising, even though this was not at issue in any of the cases before the court today.

There was also speculation of a broader character. In the last 10 or 15 years the pendulum has swung very far in the direction of taking the legal wraps off the dissemination of pornographic literature of one kind and another. Do the court's rulings indicate that the pendulum is beginning to swing the other way?

It is too early to say for sure because the court left open a number of questions that may take another series of decisions to settle. The whole question of suppression of pornography and maintenance of freedom of speech is an extremely broad one.

Police Getting Bad Name

Police Getting Bad Name

Police are getting a bad name in B.C. because this province is too hard on its citizens, Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the legislature Monday.

B.C.'s chief law enforcement officer told the House: "I do believe we are giving too many people too many records in this country."

"Our rate of prosecutions in B.C. or Canada is really very high."

SECOND READING

The attorney-general spoke shortly before the House gave second reading, approval in principle, to a bill which provides for compulsory motor vehicle testing and 24-hour licence suspensions for drinking drivers.

It was time for legislators to find other means of securing public order, instead of just prescribing offences for the police to enforce, said Mr. Bonner.

"WAY OF LIFE"

"I am concerned with the way charging has become part of the Canadian way of life," he said, adding that it is far too easy for a young person to be charged with hitch-hiking or for a young person to get a record as a juvenile delinquent because he has no licence for his bicycle.

That was why, said the attorney-general, he wanted this new legislation introduced "in a form permitting police officers to be judicially firm with people whom they wish not to see fall into trouble or disrepute."

Sukarno Bid Is Rejected

SINGAPORE (AP) — The new military regime in Indonesia has rejected President Sukarno's request to return to his birthplace in eastern Java, informed sources said Monday.

Possibly he wanted to retire from politics or make contact with pro-Communist remnants in an effort to whip up resistance against the new regime.

Students Call Ky 'Traitor'

SAIGON (UPI) — American Marines killed 28 Communist Viet Cong Monday in action near the South Viet Nam border and in a second big battle further south. For the first time in the current political unrest, students directly attacked Premier Nguyen Cao Ky by name early Tuesday, branding him a traitor to the nation.

The students of one of Saigon's largest high schools staged an angry, anti-government walkout and were barred from returning to their classrooms by nervous school officials who feared they could not control them.

educational institutions this year. Despite the 200 per cent rise in the number of high school graduates, the Soviet government has approved an expansion of only nine per cent in the freshman classes of universities and institutes next fall.

ADULTS

Only 404,000 full-time students will gain a place in the 1966 freshman class. Some of these places will be reserved for older persons who have worked for at least two years.

Probably no more than 340,000 from the 1966 high school graduating class will continue studies this year as full-time college students. That is roughly

University Pair Going East

Two University of Victoria students will travel to Quebec and Ontario in May on a travel and education seminar sponsored by the World University Service of Canada.

They are Michelle Bradshaw, 1101 Hampshire Road, a fourth year education student, and Clarence Edwards, 42 Moss Street, an overseas student from Antigua, British West Indies.

With other students from across Canada, they will talk and study in Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto from May 27 to June 14.

about one out of every eight high school graduates.

Since Soviet high school graduates themselves are a select group, accounting this year for 36 per cent of the total number of young people aged 17 and 78, this means that only about one out of every 23 persons aged 17 and over will begin college in the autumn. Special middle-level vocational courses are being organized for some of the other graduates (approximately 350,000).

DROPOUTS, TOO

The remaining 2,000,000 new graduates will be expected to go to work. Also tabbed for the labor force are at least 800,000 of the 3,800,000 who will graduate May 26 from the eighth-grade elementary schools. In addition, ninth-grade dropouts also will enter the labor force.

Each industry will receive a quota stating the number of job vacancies to be reserved for teenagers.

Quotas, varying by industry, will range from 3 per cent to 10 per cent. For example, coal mines can fulfil their quota by hiring one teen-ager for 200 employees. But the goal for sewing establishments and state farms will be one teen-ager for every 10 employees.

RESISTANCE

The Soviet Union stands on the threshold of a jobs-for-youth crisis because the outbreak in the secondary school years coincides with a sharp boost in the number of youths reaching working age.

In 1958, after Nikita Khrushchev complained that the Soviet high school graduates were scornful of physical labor, the Soviet Union adopted a law to require all pupils to go to work after eighth grade and permit them simultaneously to take a three-year course preparing them for university admission.

The law envisaged abolition of existing 10-year general education schools and authorizing only the job route to college. However, educators and parents resisted the slash in general education.

Instead of being closed, the 10-year schools of general education were generally altered to triple their hours of shop work, partly by addition of an 11th year in which as much as half the time was devoted to shop work.

By this adaptation, the schools sought to satisfy Khrushchev's demands for more vocational training. But factory managers disliked the emphasis on pupil-employees and the training often was not matched to job prospects. By August, 1964, Khrushchev decided to abandon the vocationally-oriented 11th grade, as is being done this year.

It remains to be seen whether enough discontent arises this summer to induce the Kremlin to assign more priority to college spending.

Wild Heckling Stings Tories

one of the world's most skilled politicians — a superb showman who knew exactly what would happen in the Birmingham Rag Market, and how to exploit it. On the train from London he remarked: "I know it's going to be very rough — and that's what I like." He plays it cool, very cool — giving a magnificent and controlled performance.

Two television cameras of the British Broadcasting Corporation and commercial television are in the hall. This is peak viewing time. Wilson knows that during the next four hours he and his Rag Market audience will be shown five times on British television — in three long newscasts, and two special election programs. Almost every British family watching television will see this meeting.

While his young opponents chant and howl, Wilson calmly lights his pipe and surrounds himself with a cloud of comfortable smoke. Wilson laughs with apparently genuine pleasure when Young Tories raise hangman's nooses — exploiting the sensational "hangman's noose" — labor union court in the Oxford factory of the British Motor Corp. But Wilson knows that the hangman's nooses are being spelt by his opponents' behavior.

As a change from "Wilson Out," they howl "We want Heath! We want Heath!"

Nothing could be more stupid. Tory leader Edward Heath has refused to speak in the Birmingham Rag Market, where election meetings by political leaders are traditional. Instead, he has scheduled a meeting at Birmingham town hall, with admission only by tickets from the Conservative party. Until now, Heath has failed disastrously to project himself and to communicate with mass audiences.

"So you want Heath" shouts Wilson happily — and even if he cannot be heard in the hall, he can be seen and heard in millions of British homes. "But he doesn't dare to come and speak here in the Rag Market! The Tory leader is afraid to show himself to the people of Birmingham, and has retreated to the town hall, where only a carefully screened audience will be allowed to listen to him!"

"If you want to see and hear your leader, you must ask his party for tickets. I have been looking forward to this Rag Market confrontation. I really can't understand why anyone wants to run away from the Rag Market!"

Wilson's howling opponents still don't see what all this is doing to his image. Paper and cardboard pieces are showered on the platform and Mrs. Wilson is hit on the neck by a cardboard missile.

Policemen try to push back the missile throwers but Wilson immediately calls out "I ask the police to leave them alone!"

Heavily he remarks: "And we did support votes at 18 — heaven help us!" (Britain's present minimum voting age is 21 years.)

As soon as Wilson knows from his watch that the meeting is now "Live" on nation-wide prior approval of the governor-in-council.

The resolution, if passed, simply would abolish the death sentence and replace it with a life term that could be shortened only by cabinet intervention.

Mearns, the debate over Truscott's guilt of innocence is sapping the emotions of MPs.

In the Commons, Prime Minister Pearson said he is taking a personal interest in the case.

But he would give no decision on a royal commission until a Solicitor-General Larry Pannell gave him a full report on the case.

Outside the Commons, New Democrat Stanley Knowles, who visited Truscott in Collin's Bay Penitentiary and now is convinced of his innocence, predicted that there would be a judicial inquiry.

"They can't refuse it, with the tremendous public opinion across the country," he said. However, not everyone shares Knowles' view of Truscott's innocence.

Some knowledgeable government sources are equally convinced of his guilt, while admitting that after seven years there may now be a case for his parole.

Five Toronto schoolboys played hockey to visit the Prime Minister with a petition for a royal commission to investigate the case. Mr. Pearson assured them that he was looking into the case with "a fine tooth comb."

Tory Leader Diefenbaker asked if anyone was making a point-by-point examination of Mrs. Isabel Leabourdis' book, which charged a miscarriage of justice and triggered the uproar.

Any investigation, Mr. Pearson replied, would require careful examination of the book.

MP John Matheson also visited Truscott in the penitentiary 10 days ago.

"Whether he is guilty or the victim of mistake, he is not the same boy," Mr. Matheson said.

So now there were two widely divergent courses: To establish his innocence, if such were indicated; and to consider, with all humanity, the possibilities of parole.
